Three Die in Two Area Accidents; One Drowns, Others in Auto Crash

Carbondale Youth Loses Life at Minnewaska; Others Fatally Hurt as Car Leaves Road Were on Trail

Ride on Mountain Road Ends Fatally for Two Resort Employees

Three employees at Lake Minnewaska met their death Saturday—one by drowning when he jumped into the cold waters of the lake while in an overheated condition; the other two when the car in which they were riding left the Minnewaska Trail, about a mile from Kerhonkson, turned over several times and threw its occupants into a field.

Victim of the drowning was Leonard Costolnick, 18, of 299 Canson street, Carbondale, Pa., son of Mrs. Mary Costolnick, of the same address. It took place shortly after 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon and Sergeant Hopkins and a detail of state troopers, Sheriff H. C. Anderson and deputies and Captain Wagar and guards from the Napanoch Institution, with others assisted in searching for the body until 12:15 Sunday afternoon, when grappling hooks wielded by Sergeant Hopkins, who was working with Benjamin Litchford of Ellenville, located it and brought it to the surface.

Coroner Frank J. McCordie of Rosendale gave a verdict of accidental death by drowning and the body was turned over to the Humiston service and later taken to the home in Carbondale.

Costolnick, who would have been 19 on October 23, had been working at the Cliff House. According to the story of the drowning as learned by the officers he left his work about 3 o'clock and ran part way around the lake to the Wildmere House. He had a couple of bottles of coca cola, then put on his bathing trunks and jumped into the lake. Whether he went in near the Wildmere and started to swim across, or went in from the other side does not appear to be clear. In any event he sank to the bottom and failed to come to the surface again, about 25 feet from shore on the Cliff House side of the lake. There is a steep ledge running out about 10 feet from shore at that point and then drops off so that the water is between 30 and 60 feet in depth. Costolnick's body was found about at the point where he was seen to go down.

Join in Search

Joining in the search for the unfortunate young man were Sergeant Hopkins and Troopers Maloney, Miller and Evers, with Lieut. Faber and Trooper Driscoll of Wurtsboro also coming down Sunday; Sheriff Anderson and Deputies Vredenburg, Segelken and DeWitt; Captain Wagar and guards from Napanoch; Benjamin Litchford and Harold Ray of Ellenville, the latter an expert first-aid instructor who came and remained until Saturday evening, when it was apparent that his help could be of no avail.

Different crews were busy grappling until dark Saturday and resumed again at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

Two other Minnewaska employees who met death Saturday, one not long after the crash of the car in which they were riding, the other shortly after midnight, were Preston R. Billows, 41, of 719 South Spruce street, Elizabethtown, Pa., and John Hornick, 53, of 22 White's Crossing, Carbondale, Pa.

The two men had started to drive to Kerhonkson when near the Emzy Turner farm, not far from the junction of the Minnewaska Trail and the road to Granite, their car for some reason swerved from the highway, evidently turned over several times and came to a stop in a field some distance from the road. The motor was still smoking when Mr. and Mrs. Henry Decker of Kerhonkson, who were driving up the trail, came along and discovered the car in the field.

Moral Law Would Help World Peace, Says Msgr. Sheen

Building of Weak Treaties Like Towers of Babel Brings World Chaos, Says Noted Speaker

Freedom is not the right to do as you want but the right to do as you ought, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen, professor of psychology at Catholic University in Washington, told an audience of some 350 members of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, in an address at the Governor Clinton Hotel Sunday morning at the annual communion breakfast which followed holy communion.

Restoration of moral law is the first offensive of a great ideal, he told his listeners in a stirring talk on "What are We Fighting For." We are fighting for a nobler cause than we know and for a nobler cause than we deserve, he told his listeners in the address which was broadcast over station WGY in a nationwide hook-up. At the present time he said there were two major events taking place, the war and the revolution. The war is only incidental to the revolution and he said the revolution would outlast the war.

Going back to the first World War, he said that after that conflict men were no better because of the war and he likened the last war to the flood. After the great deluge man built the tower of Babel and believed that, with God's help they could climb to heaven. After the first World War men built a tower of Babel at Versailles where man believed that such a heaven could be built through the signing of treaties. But despite the fact that there were concluded over 4,000 treaties there, enough to last until "the crack of doom" if "man believed what they signed," and some 211 peace treaties before this year, still the world was no better. But out of the first World War was born (Continued on Page Five)

Start Collecting Old Rubber Millions of Americans Start Today Searching for Old Rubber; Gas Rationing May Hinge on Outcome

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY

Washington, June 15 (AP)—With the results to be measured in more machines for victory, and possibly a delay or forestallment of nationwide gasoline rationing, millions of Americans today began a search of attics, cellars, backyards and other places of disrepair for old rubber.

The campaign began by direction of President Roosevelt, who called upon every citizen to turn in "every bit of rubber you can possibly spare."

Each person was requested to take all discarded or spare rubber to the nearest of the 400,000 gasoline stations scattered throughout the country. The needed elastic may be donated or sold to the station operator for a penny a pound.

The oil industry announced its entire war force, numbering over 1,000,000 men and women, and its automotive equipment would handle the job of receiving the rubber and assembling it at central points for delivery to the government.

Although officials had made no flat statement that a decision on nationwide gasoline rationing would hinge on the campaign, William R. Boyd, Jr., chairman of the

Msgr. Stanley Delivers Sermon at Pontifical Mass in Parish Observance Here

The beautiful Church of St. Mary was filled to capacity Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at one of the most impressive and colorful ceremonies in the history of the parish. The occasion was the celebration of a solemn Pontifical Mass commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of St. Mary's as a separate parish with a resident pastor.

The celebrant of the Mass was the Most Rev. Stephen J. Donahue, D.D., auxiliary bishop of New York. He was assisted by the Rev. Joseph B. Scully, a former pastor of St. Mary's Church, as archpriest, with the Rev. William H. Kennedy and the Rev. James P. Moore, former assistants, as deacon and subdeacon, respectively. The Right Rev. Monsignor John J. Stanley, P.R., former pastor, preached the sermon at the Mass, he being presented by the pastor, the Very Rev. Msgr. Martin J. Drury.

The Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, D.D., archbishop of New York, presided from his throne. He was attended by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph P. Donahue, P.A., V.G., as archpriest, and by the Rt. Rev. Henry F. O'Carroll and the Rt. Rev. Stephen P. Connelly as deacons of honor. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John J. Casey and the Rev. John Fleming were master of ceremonies.

Archbishop Speaks
At the close of the Mass Archbishop Spellman spoke words of congratulation and encouragement to priests and people, and also announced the conferring of the Apostolic Benediction on the congregation.

In his remarks the archbishop said: While this is only my second visit to St. Mary's in Kingston, I have heard a great deal of the parish. I have read the booklet that has been published on the occasion of the Centenary of St. Mary's, and I have listened with attention to the words of Monsignor Stanley.

At the height of the display a bolt of lightning struck the chimney on the Spina house on Andrew street, loosening some of the brick. The bolt also followed along the house gutter and loosened some of the slate around the vent pipe on the roof. The electricity also traveled down through the house into the kitchen where the stove emitted a series of electric sparks.

Members of the family, when the bolt struck the house, ran out into the street. Fortunately, aside from the chimney and the vent pipe, there was no damage and no fire was started by the lightning.

Another bolt also struck one of the big transformers on the electric light pole on Andrew street between the properties of Charles Messinger and W. W. Brady. The transformer was burned out, and had to be replaced with another.

The burning out of the transformer interrupted the house electric service in the houses along Andrew street that were on that circuit, and there were no lights until a new transformer had been positioned.

While the electrical storm of early Saturday night brought some relief to the sweltering city, continued exceptionally warm weather throughout the night and on Sunday afternoon a temperature of 90 degrees was recorded by the city thermometer about 2 o'clock.

Later Sunday afternoon the skies became overcast and there were showers which dispelled the heat wave that had gripped the city since last Wednesday when the official thermometer of the city registered temperatures in the 90's.

Last night the weather turned chilly. Early this morning the chilly weather continued, but as the sun ascended it gradually grew warmer. At 8 o'clock this morning (Continued on Page Five)

Additional Gas For Business Purposes Only

Washington, June 15 (AP)—Eastern motorists who have used up their gasoline quotas for pleasure driving will have to put their cars in the garage for the next 30 days, unless they can prove they need additional fuel for business purposes.

The Office of Price Administration, which raised the value of purchasing units on A and B rationing cards from three to six gallons weekly effective today, said no additional cards would be issued except to motorists who convince local boards of an actual need.

Unit values on the rationing cards, now doubled, should allow motorists enough gasoline to last until July 15, when regular rationing starts, provided they have conserved wisely. Joel Dean, chief of O.P.A.'s fuel ration branch, said last night.

"Some motorists have the impression that if their units are all used they should automatically receive more units for the two-week period between June 30 and July 15," Dean said. "This is not the case. The cards now in use were issued with enough units to provide for their gasoline needs through June 30."

"Card holders now should be able to get enough gasoline to last them, not for two weeks but for four, until July 15."

Transformer, Tree And House in City Hit by Lightning

Andrew Street Residence Is Struck and Other Bolts Cause Damage in Same Area

Following a day of the most severe heat experienced so far this year in Kingston an electrical storm broke over the city about 7 o'clock Saturday night. Lightning struck the house of Matthew Spina, 65 Andrew street, doing some damage, and also wrecked one of the transformers of the Central Hudson Corp. on that street, as well as peeling the bark from a tree on the O'Reilly property.

According to the records in the city engineer's office the official city thermometer registered a high of 97 degrees in the shade on Saturday afternoon, while the lowest temperature recorded that day was 73 degrees. Thermometers exposed to the rays of the sun registered more than 100 degrees.

Shortly before 7 o'clock that night the skies became overcast and the electrical storm broke over the city. At the height of the display a bolt of lightning struck the chimney on the Spina house on Andrew street, loosening some of the brick. The bolt also followed along the house gutter and loosened some of the slate around the vent pipe on the roof. The electricity also traveled down through the house into the kitchen where the stove emitted a series of electric sparks.

Objector to Draft Reported by Board

Harold Decker Who Now Lives at Beacon Was Registered in City

Harold Decker, who registered with the Kingston Selective Service Board, but is now living in Beacon, where he is employed, is the first selectee to be given a "1A-O" classification by the local board. This is the classification assigned to conscientious objectors.

At the draft board office today officials said that while Decker had explained he had conscientious objections, owing to religious belief, in war, he had no objections to being assigned to the non-combatant branch of the armed service of the nation.

It was stated that Decker would be inducted when his number is called, and further action in his case would be decided by the army authorities.

Decker, although now residing in Beacon, is still under the jurisdiction of the local board.

Saturday the draft board released the following list of classifications:

Below are listed the names of registrants together with their classifications as made or changed by this local board June 13. This list is for public convenience and is posted day by day as local board classifications are made or changed. If information is desired concerning any local board classification made or changed previous to the above date, request for such information should be made of the local board clerk. Upon such request the local board clerk will assist by consulting the Classification Record, which is a public document containing a permanent list of the names of all registrants and their current classifications, and (Continued on Page Two)

Senate For Military Pay Allotment Bill

Washington, June 15 (AP)—The senate approved and sent to the house today a military pay allotment bill requiring draft boards to consider family relationships in calling men for duty with the armed forces.

Under the basic section of measure, details of which were revised last week by a joint committee, the government would help the four lowest ranks of soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guardsmen support their dependents.

Deductions taken from the men's pay would be supplemented by federal allowances which in some cases would be considerably larger than the fighting men's contributions.

The second section of the bill revises the selective service act by requiring local draft boards to first exhaust supplies of single men, or those without bona fide family ties, before calling up husbands and fathers.

Russian Lines Held Staunchly

No Doubt That Hitler Is Straining Every Move to Start Offensive

By DE WITT MACKENZIE

The Russian lines held staunchly through a bloody week-end—and that's the vital news of the hour.

There can be no doubt that Hitler is straining every nerve to get his heavily delayed offensive under way. But it won't roll until he can rip loose a portion of that magnificent Red line somewhere.

Particularly violent fighting continued in the two greatest battles—one on the Kharkov front in the Ukraine and the other before the long-besieged Soviet naval base of Sevastopol on the Crimea in the Black Sea. These closely related operations represent a Nazi effort to crack the gateway into the Caucasus, thereby creating a funnel through which the Nazi chief could pour his waiting legions.

Here the Germans, employing the tactics which they made so well known in the first World War, have been trying to breach the Red defenses by weight of numbers. It's a method of attack which frequently succeeds—if you don't care how many lives you sacrifice. However, Marshal Timoshenko's Bolsheviks at latest reports were standing off these terrific massed attacks and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. That the defenders also were suffering many casualties seemed a foregone conclusion.

Further evidence that the Fuehrer is trying to get his "spring" Blitzkrieg going is seen in boiling up of fierce local attacks throughout the length of the attenuated Russo-German line. One of the most important of these assaults continues against the Arctic port (Continued on Page Two)

Black Sea Warfare

Naval warfare broke out meanwhile in the Black Sea where the Red fleet, thundering into action to bolster Sevastopol against land assault, laid a curtain of shellfire on the encroaching Crimean line of the Germans.

Reports reaching Moscow said the naval bombardment took a heavy toll among the Germans with scattering of Rumanian allies. The war ships were not identified.

This turn in the battle of Sevastopol after seven months of German siege or active assault, and the veiled Mediterranean movement which provoked the Italian assault following closely upon the forced landing of four United States army bombers in Turkey after some mysterious mission of destruction.

One report from Turkey over the week-end was that the Americans had bombed Rumanian oil refineries but there also were various German reports that the bombers had participated in the defense of Sevastopol and had attacked German bases in Russia.

At any rate, considering official secrecy on the affair, there was a general belief in London that the United States had opened a new air front in the eastern Mediterranean.

If the British actually were moving convoys eastward from the Atlantic into the Mediterranean, as the Italians reported, they might have been carrying sizeable reinforcements for the battle of Libya. That struggle, generated by the Axis attempt to forestall a new British offensive, had developed today into a fluid, violent engagement on the desert approaches to Tobruk, port of entry and base of much of the British strength in Libya. Enemy tanks were showing a wedge from the Axis inland salient toward the coast, which, if successful, would isolate troops remaining in the Ain El Gazala region, 40 miles west of Tobruk. The British were attacking the rear of this movement.

Desert Fight

Third Battle Rages at Tobruk in Adjusting Positions

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH

Associated Press War Editor

A great running sea-air battle, which on the face of Axis reports—the only information available thus far—seems to have stemmed from a major strategic move of the allies, was being fought today at Italy's Mediterranean doorstep between the Italian islands of Sardinia and Sicily.

The location of the battle, the strength and composition given by Rome for the allied naval force and the reckless expenditure of planes in the attack on it suggested either that Italian territory itself might be under attack or that the allies were engaged in a great transfer of strength between Gibraltar and Suez.

The Italian high command, in a special communique, claimed that two cruisers, one destroyer and four steamers were sunk out of one of two British convoys, and a battleship, an aircraft carrier, two cruisers, one destroyer and four steamers heavily damaged.

The Italians said the convoy attacked was protected by "numerous units of the line and by two aircraft carriers." Spotting the convoy early Saturday, Italians said their scout planes later lost sight of it and the first attack was not delivered until Sunday.

"Numerous formations" of torpedo planes, bombers and fighters then struck the flotilla, the Italians related. They acknowledged 20 planes lost themselves and reported shooting 15 carrier-borne planes down in flames.

"The operations were resumed in the early hours of this morning against the remaining units," the communique concluded.

Reports reaching Moscow said the naval bombardment took a heavy toll among the Germans with scattering of Rumanian allies. The war ships were not identified.

This turn in the battle of Sevastopol after seven months of German siege or active assault, and the veiled Mediterranean movement which provoked the Italian assault following closely upon the forced landing of four United States army bombers in Turkey after some mysterious mission of destruction.

Military Services Taking Half June Male Graduates

Minneapolis, June 15—Fifty per cent of all men graduating from 156 colleges during June will join the American Army, Navy or Marine Corps soon after Commencement Day, E. E. Crabb, president of Investors Syndicate, said here today in reporting results of an annual national survey made by his company.

"War industries," said Mr. Crabb, in commenting on the war role of colleges, technical schools and universities in the United States, "are recruiting less than a quarter of this year's male graduates from 181 of the institutions answering the questionnaire."

"Non-war activities likewise are employing less than one out of every four men graduates from 162 universities, or five-eighths of those responding."

"Women graduates, at a rate less than one out of every four, are enlisting for work in war industries soon after graduation, 188, or three-quarters of the replying institutions, declared. Half of the women graduates from 196 schools, or three out of every five answering, will be employed in non-war positions soon after they get their degrees."

Teaching Leads Non-War Jobs

"Among the non-war positions being offered to graduates, teaching received two out of every five mentions. Secretarial work ranked second to teaching in non-war employment opportunities, being cited in one-seventh of the mentions. Business administration and the combined engineering fields each received a twelfth of the 1,156 total job mentions."

"Answers indicate that less than three per cent of the June graduates will enter non-war positions in each of such fields as agriculture, chemistry, office clerical work, accounting, selling, banking, nursing, social work, medicine, home economics and laboratory research."

"More than two-thirds of the non-war position offers, or a total of 784, were mentioned by co-educational institutions. Women's colleges mentioned 278 non-war jobs or three times as many as the number offered to graduates from men's colleges."

"Agriculture is not mentioned by either men's or women's colleges—only by the co-educational institutions, some of which have departments of agriculture, although a land corps is being recruited in many parts of the nation. No positions as office clerks or laboratory researchers are mentioned by men's institutions."

"Engineering was mentioned twice by women's schools. Banking was mentioned five times by women's colleges against only three times by men's universities. Selling was mentioned four times in the women's group to every single mention by the men's colleges."

Survey Reveals Supply of Grads

Investors Syndicate this year queried American institutions of higher learning, other than specialized schools such as military academies and theological seminaries, about the problems presented by the war. The survey was intended to show what the schools are being asked to do and are doing about such war problems."

The company, which employs many graduates in its field staffs and offices, in this sixth successive annual survey, emphasized the available supply of, rather than demand for, men and women graduates.

One question asked, "From present indications, what percentage of your June, 1942, graduating class will enter military service?" It also asked the same information concerning war industries and non-defense employment."

Military services, according to 322 schools, are taking the following ratios of their male graduates: more than half, replied 156 or 48 per cent of the universities; more than one out of every four, answered 66 schools or 20 per cent; fewer than one out of every four graduates, 100 or 31 per cent of the total schools replied.

War Service Out-Pulling Factories

"Production fronts are recruiting fewer male graduates than battle fronts," asserted Mr. Crabb. "War industry enlistments of men graduates from 272 universities were in the following relative amounts: more than 50 per cent of the graduates from 27 or about a tenth of the answering schools; between a quarter and half the class from 64 or one of every four schools replying; less than 25 per cent from 181 or two of every three institutions responding."

"Women also are being recruited by war industries as follows: every other woman graduate from 20 or a twelfth of the answering schools; between 25 and 50 per cent from 40, or a sixth; under 25 per cent predict 188 or three-quarters of the replying institutions."

"Non-war job offers to June male graduates from 265 schools were divided as follows: every other man in the class, was the way 33 or an eighth of the correspondents put it; about one out of four graduates, said 70 or almost a fourth of the commentators; fewer than 25 per cent declared 162 or five-eighths of these institutions."

"Women are receiving many non-war or commercial employment opportunities, report 309 universities, who detail such offers as the following: every other woman graduate, answer 196 or 63 per cent of this group; from a quarter to half of the class, declare 59 or 19 per cent; below a quarter of the graduates, reply 54 or 17.4 per cent of these responding schools."

Four Non-War Fields Offer 72 Per Cent of Jobs

Another query read:

"In what non-war fields of employment are you offering jobs to graduates?"

Brewed from golden grain and fragrant hops, Utica Club Beer is Lager and XXX Cream Ale is nourishing and appealing. Ask for it in Clubs, Restaurants, Grocers.

Named Corporal

John J. Henebery, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Henebery, Sr., of 35 Lucas avenue, who enlisted in the United States Army January 2, has been promoted to the rank of corporal. Corp. Henebery is stationed at Camp Tyson, Tenn.

Employment do you expect the largest demand for graduates?

Four fields, teaching, secretarial work, business administration and engineering formed 72 per cent of the total mentions. Agriculture ranked fifth in the co-educational institutions, but chemistry held that position in the men's colleges, and nursing and social work tied for that place in the women's schools."

Six times as many teachers and 25 times as many secretaries were sought at women's as at men's schools, though twice as many of these positions were offered at co-educational universities, as were mentioned by women's colleges."

"Military service and war industry demands," commented Mr. Crabb, "are importantly influencing the non-war employment offers, as mentions by men's and women's colleges show."

"Business administration was mentioned 18 times by women's institutions, but only 12 times by the men's group. More banking and selling jobs were offered to women than to men. Half as many accounting places were offered to women as to men. Chemistry positions were equally divided. Curiously enough this likewise was true of the ministry, though no theological seminaries were queried."

Pertinent Facts On Conscription

Service and former service men agree on one general rule: Bring as little as possible, of either extra clothing or accessories.

It is possible for a man to report for induction with no equipment other than the clothes he has on, and without money, and still get along until he is discharged from service. All requisite transportation, food, shelter and clothing will be furnished by the Government.

There are a few items, however, that should be taken in the interest of cleanliness, comfort and happiness. At most, these include one change of shirt and underwear for the first morning's use, a small cake of soap and soap container, a tooth brush and tooth paste or powder, a comb and small hairbrush. It is well to take some money. A small durable metal shaving mirror, shoe dauber or small brush and polish, a compact sewing kit and small clothes brush or whisk broom are suggested as "going away" presents.

In addition, the selectee should bring a razor and shaving brush and soap or powder, unless he is fortunate enough to be able to go through the first two days without shaving. An electric razor may be usable in some places, but the soldier will not always find a convenient electric outlet for it.

It is well to bring a tan tie and extra handkerchiefs. The Army will issue one tie and four handkerchiefs, but many soldiers will want an extra supply.

It is most desirable that a small bag or valise be carried, or a folding carton and strong string. This will be needed to mail civilian clothes back home from the reception center.

The Argentine Government plans to operate a number of coal mines.

Minute Men Out To Aid Bond Fund

Drive for $1,900,000,000 Is Launched Today

New York, June 15 (AP)—Armed with fountain pens instead of guns, 200,000 modern-day "Minute Men" formally launched today a 10-day drive for $1,900,000,000 worth of war bond pledges with advance indications that poor and rich alike were ready to respond.

For as thousands of pledge solicitors jumped the gun by beginning their rounds yesterday, they found eager customers in the city's polyglot tenement districts as well as in penthouses and their smiling reception augured success for the door-to-door canvass of 2,000,000 New York families expected to buy almost one-sixth of the national war savings bond and stamp quota of $12,000,000,000.

Keynote of the huge campaign was sounded yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Colin P. Kelly, widow of the American flier who gave his life to sink a Japanese battleship; Stock Exchange President Emil Schram, and Bill (Bojangles) Robinson, the dancing "mayor of Harlem."

"I know what's needed to bring this war to a close—but rapidly," Mrs. Kelly said at a ceremony in Prospect Park, Brooklyn. "We must bring more and more planes to the boys in the combat zones. We can do this by buying bonds."

She wore a cellophane-budded corsage of nine war savings stamps, and explained:

"We wear these for duty as well as beauty. I would like to see every American woman wearing such a corsage."

Schram pointed out that the purchase of war bonds was an excellent investment, with every $3 returning $4 in 10 years, and added that "such voluntary investment of our money in government bonds is one of the methods by which we can prevent inflation."

Declared old Bojangles:

"I want you all to buy war bonds, lot of 'em. But you need money to buy bonds. So, as mayor of Harlem, I'll fix you with money to buy bonds. Tomorrow the number is 482."

This reference to Harlem's famous policy game (illegal) drew as much laughter as his dancing feet drew applause.

In general, those of the volunteer army of Minute Men and women who started taking pledges yesterday reported that the average family signing up to purchase bonds and stamps ran close to the "10 per cent of income" quota set by the treasury department.

Citizens Urged To Back Scrap Rubber Campaign

The Kingston Salvage Committee urges every citizen to get behind President Roosevelt's nationwide scrap rubber salvage campaign, which begins today and continues until Tuesday midnight, June 30.

According to George Goodfellow, chairman of the Kingston Committee, all of the nation's oil companies have been requested by the president to cooperate in this drive. A special committee of local representatives of the gasoline industries is being formed. J. H. Cole, E. C. Cowdrey, F. P. Reis, Al Mower, and Arthur O. Brace have already expressed their willingness to serve on the committee. Other names will be added to this committee during the day. These men have contacted the various service stations and instructed the service station operators to accept rubber at 1 cent per pound.

Where a citizen desires to contribute the rubber the proceeds from any sale of such rubber will be turned over to the U. S. O., the Army Relief, and the Navy Relief.

One of the difficulties confronting the local committee is the fact that many of the gasoline stations have no facilities for weighing the rubber. The Salvage Committee suggests that where a person has a large amount of rubber, that they take the rubber direct to the Kingston Scrap Rubber Company at 160 Hasbrouck avenue. Persons wishing to contribute their rubber may also place it out in a special container on the day when their ashes are usually collected and Max Oppenheimer, acting superintendent of Public Works will see that the scrap rubber will get to the salvage depot.

President Roosevelt has asked the local committee to point out that it is the duty of everyone of us to do everything that is within our power to stimulate the flow of reclaimable scrap rubber to gasoline stations. The local committee hopes the citizens of Kingston will do their part.

What Congress Is Doing Today

(By The Associated Press)

Senate

Hears King George of Greece. (Meets noon, eastern war time.)

May take up conference report on service pay allotment bill.

Appropriations committee considers labor and federal security appropriations bill.

Special silver committee session.

House

Routine session (noon).

To Aid Campaign

A drive to solicit scrap rubber was scheduled to start today by members of Aleph Zadik Aleph. A house-to-house canvass will be made, and by such effort, said Theodore Weiner, president of the club, will this local organization be effective in contributing toward the American cause.

Atlantic Sinkings

(By The Associated Press)

With the Germans threatening a new widespread campaign against all shipping in the Atlantic north of the West Indies, the total of ships sunk by enemy submarines in the western Atlantic now stands at 265.

Additional sinkings of 13 merchant ships last week and one yesterday were officially announced. More than 394 crewmen and passengers of the 14 ships were reported rescued, while 18 lives were lost and 65 persons were missing.

Seven United States ships, two British, one Norwegian, one Brazilian, one Swedish and one unidentified Allied merchantman were included in last week's sinkings. The ship sunk yesterday was a small Dutch merchantman.

The tabulation:

	Since Pearl Harbor
Off the U. S. ....	9
Off Canada ....	128
In the Caribbean ...	34
In the Gulf of Mexico	71
Off South America ...	16
Total .....	265

The German announcement of an intensified U-boat campaign north of the West Indies said that "every ship which enters this zone after June 26, 1942, will expose itself to destruction."

Germany claimed its submarines sank last week 40 Allied merchant ships and 40 destroyer off the United States coast, in the Caribbean and Panama Canal Zones and in the Mediterranean.

tries were taking the sword from the oppressors' hands and with it "they will destroy those tyrants."

The president, whose words were recorded and broadcast throughout the world, spoke to a V-shaped gathering of representatives of the 27 other nations in the White House at Washington. In a prayer to God, he said:

"We pledge our hearts and lives today to the cause of all free mankind. Grant us victory . . ."

"Fumtuous, flag-waving crowds in London cheered and paraded before King George and Queen Elizabeth and the rulers of European governments in exile. Addressing all the empire, Prime Minister Churchill said:

"In this ceremony we pledge to each other not merely support and succor till victory comes but that wider understanding, that quickened sense of human sympathy, that recognition of common purpose of humanity without which the suffering and striving of the United Nations would not achieve its full award."

In northern Ireland, where American expeditionary forces are massing, Major Gen. Russell P. Hartle, field commander, said: "We shall carry relief to the oppressed . . . And far away in Chungking a big night lantern procession moved through the streets as the Chinese chanted "United we fight, united we win."

Flags flew from all public buildings in Moscow and the Soviet newspaper Izvestia pointed out the date for the demonstration was chosen "in connection with the fact that for many years June 14 has been annually observed in the United States of America as the day the American flag was consecrated by the traditions and struggles of the American people for independence and liberty."

The observance extended to South America, to India, the Middle East, and to South America, Chicago and Columbus, Ohio, witnessed record breaking parades and in New York a door-to-door campaign was started to obtain war bond purchase pledges.

Approximately 70 Leave for Albany Induction Center

Approximately 70 men were sent this morning to an army induction center in Albany by the Kingston Selective Service Board. The men on arrival in Albany will be given a physical examination by the army doctors, and those accepted for service will be granted a 14-day furlough to return to their homes before being sent to training camp.

This is the first contingent under the new War Department rulings that is granted this 14-day furlough. If the men who pass the physical tests do not desire to accept the furlough they will be sent at once to training camp.

The contingent was in charge today of John Joseph Palisi, who had been appointed leader by the draft board. His two assistant leaders were Herbert Morris Siller and Edward Sampson McKinnon, a negro, who had charge of the 14 negroes who were members of the contingent.

As the majority of the men accepted for service will undoubtedly return to Kingston on furlough the crowd that assembled in front of the draft board office to see them off was not as large as they formerly were.

C.C.C. Fight

Washington, June 15 (AP)—A determined fight to abolish the Civilian Conservation Corps was reported today to have split the Senate appropriations committee into two equally strong camps, although a majority of members apparently favored continuance of another New Deal relief agency.

The National Youth Administration, Senator McKellar (D. Tenn.) led a move to scuttle both organizations as the committee sped consideration of several appropriations bill expected to occupy most of Congress' attention for the rest of the month.

New York Workers Shift From Peace To War Industries

Albany, N. Y., June 15 (AP)—Thousands of New York workers are shifting from peace-time to war-time industries—especially expanding ordnance, transportation equipment, and electrical plants—state labor department figures reveal today.

Surveying May statistics the department announced "the release of many workers by plants making civilian goods was counterbalanced by the hiring during the month of thousands of additional workers by war plants."

"Sizeable layoffs" were reported by metal plants manufacturing tin cans, razors, heating apparatus, radios, agricultural machinery and castings. Textile plants making rugs, carpets and other woolen fabrics ran into material shortages. Seasonal slumps hit apparel plants.

However, large firms producing transportation equipment, ordnance and electrical goods "continued to expand their production of war supplies," the department observed. Silverware, rubber and silk, and rayon goods plants rehired workers recently laid off.

Reports from 2,442 factories in the state showed 619,338 persons employed in mid-May on a total payroll of $24,345,131. The department's factory employment index was 13.5 per cent above May 1941, and the payroll index 38 per cent higher.

The largest gains—5.2 per cent in employment and 14.8 per cent in wages—were shown in the Kingston—Newburgh-Poughkeepsie area, the department said. In the Buffalo and Albany-Schenectady-Troy areas, "gains at the war factories were more than sufficient to offset the losses at consumers' goods plants." Metal plants in the Binghamton-Endicott-Johnson City area "continued to expand," while shoe firm payrolls declined although working forces remained the same.

Russian Lines Held Staunchly

of Murmansk, the rail-head through which vital American and British military supplies are being poured into Russia. The Nazi objective, of course, is to cut this lifeline.

Watch Murmansk, if you would keep well informed on the progress of the war, since preservation of this route is essential, and its loss would be a real catastrophe. Don't forget what I have taken the liberty of emphasizing so often that this is a war of resources, in which production and transportation must be maintained at top pitch.

'Over the Hump'

War Production Board Chairman Nelson told us yesterday that "we are 'over the hump'" in production. That's great news, but that won't win the war unless transportation gets the material to the soldiers on the front. So Murmansk, in some degree like the Burma Road, is one of the allied key positions right now.

The importance of transportation is clearly seen in the nature of the belligerent activities. Hitler is combating Atlantic and Arctic waters with his submarines and raiders and has announced unrestricted warfare off our Atlantic coast beginning June 26—to cut off our supplies for the Allies.

The Japs waged a major campaign to sever China's Burma Road lifeline. And now the Nipponese are making violent efforts to conquer southeastern China, and the immediate purpose of this drive is to secure the railways which will permit Japan to send supplies overland much of the way to French Indo-China. The point is that at present the Japs are dependent on their long sea-lanes to reach their new conquests, and their loss of shipping and protective naval vessels daily makes their supply problem more serious.

One of the greatest difficulties of the Axis in maintaining its position in Africa has been in connection with keeping its supply lines across the Mediterranean open in the face of British attack. And so one could continue, not overlooking that the British blockade of Europe represents the greatest job of supply cutting which this war has seen, and one which is playing a major role in winning the conflict for the Allies.

Form Guerrilla Band

Dallas, Tex., June 15 (AP)—One thousand tough Texans—not the pistol-totin', bronco-ridin' kind but just plain city boys—have taken a cue from the Russians and formed one of the first large-scale guerrilla bands in America. They're sure it will never happen, but just in case the enemy gets thus far in an invasion the Dallas county battalions of the Texas Defense Guard will be ready.

Here's the way they look at it: If the regular army can't stop the enemy advance the Guard will have little chance with its light equipment. So they'll take to the hills and wage a campaign of terrorism that will make the invaders wish they were home picking cherry blossoms or making ersatz Camouflage in green overalls, the first group practiced yesterday.

JOIN THE U. S. ARMY AIR FORCES AND Pay Them Back In Person!

100,000 Men Aged 18 to 26 (Inclusive) Are Needed Now for Officers' Training!

NEW SIMPLIFIED REQUIREMENTS

Are you fighting mad—aching to pay back those Japs and Nazis for those treacherous attacks on us?

Then here's your chance to return the call in person. A chance to see Berlin and Tokyo through a bomb-sight, carrying a wallop that can blast a fort to smithereens.

The greatest air armada ever known is in the making—and the U. S. Army Air Forces are looking for officers—men like you to become bombardiers, navigators, pilots.

DIPLOMAS NO LONGER REQUIRED

For the first time, Officers' Training Schools are being opened to all young men—irrespective of their education—who can qualify. This includes married men as well as single—men in business, industry, high school, college—all men 18 to 26 (inclusive) who can meet the new, simplified requirements for physical and mental fitness.

You probably can qualify—so apply now! You will then go into Aviation Cadet ranks as quickly as facilities are ready—take the best aviation training in the world while you receive $75 a month, with expenses paid.

AFTER YOU ARE COMMISSIONED

In less than a year after you start—usually 8 months—you can earn the right to be a Flying Officer—one of "The Three Musketeers of the Air"—Bombardier, Navigator, or Pilot—ready to fly high and hit hard for America.

Or—if you have been to college and have studied the right scientific subjects—you can try for a commission as a ground duty officer—in Armament, Communications, Engineering, Meteorology or Photography.

This past year about 80% of all Aviation Cadets won commissions—of which 67% are now flying officers. So your chances are excellent.

When you become a Second Lieutenant with the U. S. Army Air Forces, your pay ranges from $183 to $245 a month. Advancement should be rapid because of the tremendous expansion program of our air army.

And after this war is over and the curse of Hitlerism ended, experts predict that aviation will be the greatest of all growing industries. By training and experience, you will be in the forefront of those opportunities.

FLY WITH US—FIGHT WITH US

If you have thrilled to the mighty deeds of Army airmen, here is your chance to join them.

St. Mary's Centenary Marked by Solemn Services on Sunday

Drury and of Monsignor Stanley. And with the background of experience in parishes, I can enter easily, and I feel rather completely, intimately, into your feelings today. I know you are happy in this parish; you who have been baptized, received your sacraments here in this parish, and love it as the most cherished spot on earth.

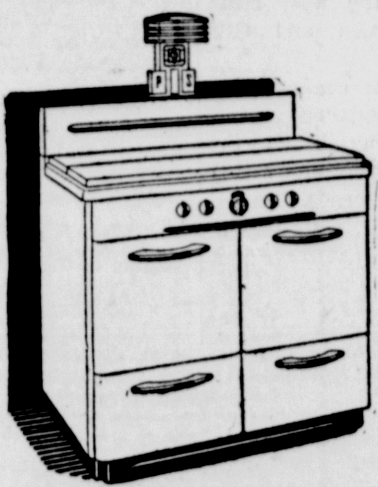

I know you are happy in hearing the stories of your parish from the lips of one of your former parish priests. I know you are happy to see so many of the former priests of St. Mary's here, participating in this observance this morning, and I am sure that the priests are happy to be here with you, and likewise the Sisters and Brothers. Because it is an historic and soul-stirring occasion, each one glances back in memory and imagination over the period of 100 years. And I was pleased at the observation of Monsignor Stanley as he commenced the church and beautifying it in such a way as to leave its original theme unimpaired—the altars, the windows, and the general lines of the church. But jubilees and centenaries have other purposes besides those of considering things of this kind. There is always another side which is likewise of great importance, and that is that the priests, religious and faithful are the inheritors of these great ambitions and of the glory for their own souls, and also for the privilege of passing them on to others, for that is the history of the church from the time the Lord gave His commission to His apostles and disciples. And so we priests and people rejoice and are edified and consoled and stirred by these facts. Mindful of those who have gone before us in the Faith, we resolve on this occasion to be faithful to the lessons and teachings of Holy Mother Church; faithful to the traditions of our priests and our parents and grandparents; faithful to the tradition handed down to the churches, the deposit of faith, through the centuries, and we resolve on this occasion likewise to be faithful to our own obligations of saving our own immortal souls—of saving that "pearl of great price" of which our Gospel speaks, and of being a similar edification and help to others to whom we must transmit the faith and the example of those who have kept the faith.

I think the prayer in the Mass celebrated this morning is very eloquent in describing and epitomizing our prayers and our feelings today, for it says "O God, the Protector of those who hope in Thee, without whom nothing is valuable and nothing is holy, multiply in us Thy graces and Thy mercies, that under Thy inspiration and Thy guidance, passing through temporal trials and temporal life, we may not lose our eternal life." That is a prayer that I think we might make, united in offering it with the Most Reverend Celebrant of the Mass. On this Centenary Day, we take new courage and go forward through the trials and difficulties and the real sorrows of this temporal life, and through them and by them and above them, gain eternal life.

It is my privilege and my happiness on this occasion to bring to all here present and to all the faithful of the parish, the Apostolic Blessing of our Holy Father, who participates with us in the joy of this day.

In a beautiful setting of flower bedecked altars and brilliantly lighted interior the clergy entered the church after passing from the rectory. Led by a corps of ushers and acolytes, the procession consisting of many priests of different religious orders, a number of monsignors, the officers of the Mass, and followed by Archbishop Spellman made a most impressive spectacle. The music of the Mass was rendered in a faultless manner by St. Mary's male choir under the direction of Theodore Riccobono at the organ.

St. Mary's Centenary

Freeman Photo

A solemn pontifical Mass was celebrated by the Most Rev. Stephen J. Donahue, D.D., auxiliary bishop of New York, on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in observance of the parish centennial. Bishop Donahue is shown entering the edifice following a procession from the rectory.

they could worship God according to the dictates of their conscience. According to some historians, Hudson travelled as far as Albany on the majestic river which still bears his name; others claim that he sailed only a few miles up the river before returning to report his findings. The exact date of the coming of these courageous and adventurous seamen is not known but it is a fact that about 1650, whole boatloads of Dutch from Holland and Huguenots from Holland and France came into these peaceful surroundings. The proof of this is the fact that many towns and hamlets in this area bear names from their home countries. Roundout meaning "straight forward," was the name given to this holy ground whereon I stand. The name Kingston comes from the English word, a century later, conquered these early Dutch settlers, forcing them to give up their lands and homesteads. These English in turn were forced to relinquish their claim when the Americans won their independence in 1776.

Almost two centuries passed since the settling of this city by the Dutch until the founding of this parish. In the meantime scattered Catholics had been served by wandering missionaries. The best known was St. Isaac Jogues after whom Jogues Island opposite the Redemptorist Monastery at Esopus, was named. It is a sad fact that records of the efforts and deeds of these priests were not kept by the Diocesan clergy but were left to be recorded in the Book of Life. The great missionaries of the first two hundred years left their works but not their names. It is of record that a Father O'Reilly gathered about him a goodly congregation in 1835. The people of Roundout had Mass every fifth Sunday for this valiant priest served the entire Hudson Valley. Later on, a Father Smith from Poughkeepsie looked after this section of the Lord's vineyard.

It was about this time that the great development of our country was being accomplished, mainly through the building of canals and later railroads. This particular section received its development mainly from water. The transference of coal from Pennsylvania to this section was made possible by the use of a waterway joining the Delaware River with the Hudson, known as the Delaware and Hudson Canal. Occupations such as farming, cattle raising, brick making and numerous others prospered in this section. It was from this section that the blue stone was shipped to make the grade stones of the great City of New York, not to mention the cement for the greatest churchmen of all time. It was during his Episcopacy that bands of hoodlums, under the guise of religion, formed a society called The Know Nothing Party. The character of the great Archbishop Hughes soon made a strong impression on New York city as well as on the whole countryside. Amid the struggles between the so-called natives and the more recent arrivals, the great Civil War broke out. The Union that had so happily been welded together by the signers of the Declaration of Independence was now threatened. It was then that the worth of the Catholics was appreciated. If Abraham Lincoln thought so much of Archbishop Hughes as to send him on a special mission to Europe, it was because of his intense patriotism which was, in turn, reflected in his Catholic brethren.

The pages of history of that time give us glowing accounts of Catholic and Protestant men leaving this city, arm in arm, for the battle front. Their bickerings were forgotten; the security of their country was at stake. Scarcely since that day has the peace and tranquility of a lovable people in this commonwealth been disturbed.

History tells us of the healthy growth of Catholicism in this parish from the days of that lovable character, Father Myles Maxwell, who assembled the first congregation here in a small building in 1842. Seven years later, in 1849, he built this majestic structure which has just now been embellished by Monsignor Drury.

It would be my delight to relate one hundred facts and incidents of one hundred years of glorious history but time will not permit, so we will have to wait until Judgment Day when the recording angel will proclaim them in Heaven.

The story of one hundred years recalls the names of many priests, religious and laity. The religious known as The Sisters of Charity, have done yeoman work here for over 81 years, working in silence making a lasting impression both here and in Heaven. Truly like the mother of the Macabees, when asked to produce her jewels, brought forth her children, saying, "these are my jewels." These good Sisters can claim to have educated 75 per cent of this parish. This then is their claim for recognition on this day. The Benedictine Sisters and the Ursuline Sisters of the Blessed Virgin, of more recent arrival, are also making a great impression for good; one in caring for the sick and needy, the other in education, giving a culture that is sorely needed not only here but throughout the country.

Purposely, I will omit the names of the laity for there are some men and women here today who can go back in memory for 70 and 80 years. There have been so many characters who have done and faithful service for this parish that I would do a grave injustice if I mentioned some and forgot others.

When mentioning pastors, I will purposely omit the names of assistants since the total number is 59. However, I feel that I would offend if I did not mention the present hard-working and very efficient co-workers Fathers Roth, Fox and Connor, and also the recent assistants, Fathers Kennedy and Moore, who are acting as deacon and subdeacon today. I will ask the others to forgive but to pray for me.

The names of pastors that stand out most prominently before my time are Fathers Maxwell, Quinn, Coyle, Farrelly, O'Farrell and Duffy. Father Maxwell founded the parish and built the church. Father William Quinn, who later became Vicar General of the Archdiocese of New York, was one of the most positive characters of his day. Father Coyle started St. Joseph's uptown and established at least half a dozen Missions in neighboring towns. Father O'Farrell was one of the leading scholars of his day. It was he who invited the famous Father Tom Burke to lecture here. He also possessed one of the greatest libraries of that day. Father Burke, the great orator and theologian, selected Roundout as one of the places in which to answer the false historian, Froude, who blackened the character of the Irish Catholic up and down the land. Father Burke followed this man from place to place. In every town and city in which he lectured, Father Burke appeared the following week in rebuttal, to answer the false charges. If ever a man presented an appreciated gift to his wife, such a picture can be imagined in my own home when my father brought home two tickets for a lecture by this famous orator, given in this church in November, 1873. The result of Father Burke's preachings was to drive back to Europe this unscrupulous falsifier, much humiliated but a wiser historian.

Two former pastors, Fathers O'Farrell and McNierny, became Bishops. Father O'Farrell became the first Bishop of Trenton and Father McNierny became the third Bishop of Albany.

I can recall from memory the scholarly Monsignor Burtzell whose tenure of 22 years left a lasting impression. It was he who erected the three altars and placed the mural paintings on the wall. He was not only a great theologian but also a great civic figure. He played a conspicuous part in the erection of the Public Library, the Benedictine and the Kingston City Hospitals.

Monsignor Hickey, who endeared himself to the whole parish, built the present school. Many people claim that he knew every man, woman and child of his parish by their first name. Owing to illness, he is unable to be here in person today but his heart is here.

There is one in our midst, Father Scully, whose fine taste has given us the rectory, the convent and the external venter of the church. Due to his taste, St. Mary's buildings are described as one of the most outstanding building groups in the whole Archdiocese of New York.

After Father Scully, came the one now speaking to you. The name I made here, I think, caused me to be sent to New York. About that time, at the end of 1938 and the beginning of 1939, a double tragedy happened in New York. I refer to the deaths of two personal friends of mine. Monsignors Petry and McMahon. Being better acquainted with Our Lady of Lourdes parish and its problems than any other priest, Bishop Donahue, then Administrator of the New York Archdiocese, asked me to take the pastorate. As the new pastor, many difficult problems demanded my solution. Half a year had passed since there came to the Diocese of New York, a new shepherd in the person of our beloved Archbishop Spellman. It was his brain and his direction that solved my knotty problems so magnificently.

To this parish as my successor came a priest whom time will rank with the greatest pastors. He came with 24 years experience as a curate, a professor and a church builder. I refer to the present incumbent, Monsignor Drury, whose genius has cleared the remaining debt, who has beautified the grand, old church with its latest adornments, keeping intact the original lines, without removing the original paintings, altars or stained glass windows, so that the oldest parishoners in St. Mary's can rejoice in the settings that inspired them in their childhood. Yes indeed, Monsignor Drury, you have made an excellent record for God and country, not only as pastor of St. Mary's but also as Dean of Ulster and Sullivan counties. Ad multos annos. Long may you reign.

In the year 2042, I hope we will all be in Heaven listening to the narrator of that day and we will hear him say that in 1942, our beloved country had been in a war to preserve the democracy of our fair land, the democracy of Washington, Jefferson and Carroll, which is a democracy with Almighty God as its fountain spring. That he will narrate that Pius XII was then Pope and, as Pope, had called for peace and justice for all mankind. That Archbishop Spellman, as second John Hughes, was battling with all his might, not stamping out the differences of sect against sect, and calling themselves Christian, but battling for Christianity against all the isms that wish to substitute man for God. That the boys of this parish, heeding the call of President Roosevelt the commander-in-chief, went on to battle, arm in arm with other boys of Kingston, to keep flying the Stars and Stripes even if it meant the supreme sacrifice. That the boys from this parish never forgot the words of their pastor, Monsignor Drury, "you can lose something greater than your lives, namely your immortal souls. Keep God always in mind and where sorely tempted, turn to your Patroness, Our Blessed Mother, for guidance and protection."

Dear parishoners, I will close hoping that Our Blessed Mother, to whose protection this parish is dedicated, will forgive me for any lapses of mind and memory in trying to depict for you the facts and figures of a glorious history. A history replete with a faith well understood and well practiced. A faith well understood by those parishoners now in Purgatory awaiting our prayers. A faith which, at this moment, is causing rejoicing in Heaven by many who are there because of the help they secured from this altar. We in turn who have as yet, time to work out our eternal salvation, ask the elect in Heaven to beseech Our Blessed Mother that we, and those who come after us, may join them in Heaven when our time comes to sever the bonds from this earth.

As the narrator of 1942, I salute the narrator of 2042 with all Burst forth with joy to God, all Sing ye a song to his name, Give to his praise.

In addition to the visiting clergy about 60 nuns of various orders attended the Mass. Among these were many who in the past had taught in St. Mary's school and others who had gone from the parish to enter the religious life. There were also present a number of religious Brothers. A goodly number of the young men of the parish who are now in the armed forces also were present at the Mass.

LEARNING TO THINK

President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago says:
"Democracy is the only form of government that is founded on the dignity of man—not the dignity of some men, of rich men, of educated men or of white men, but of all men."

It is for this reason, doubtless, that President Hutchins is so keen on the type of education that will teach all men to think. He'd like to see general education raised to the college level, after the war. He warns, quite rightly, that people "should not expect to get this all done by Thursday." It is going to take time. But just as there was trouble getting people to accept the fact of any compulsory education at all, and more trouble getting the level in some states raised to the point of giving everybody high school education, either academic or manual, so, naturally, there will be difficulty in getting people in general to accept the idea of having everybody get a college education.

The other levels, however, have abundantly justified themselves. It is a truism that everybody with education wishes he had had more, while no one wishes he had less. And while education for the job may have its uses, while general manual training is also useful, any American when he sits down to consider seriously the matter of education, what it is for, what it does, what it leads to, is apt to agree with President Hutchins that the most important kind of education is that which teaches the young to think things through.

PROGRESS IN PACIFIC

Intelligence and skill win in war as they do in peace. This fact is driven home reassuringly by the fighting in the Pacific. A big fleet of warships from Japan moved against our western outposts as the mighty hosts of Xerxes long ago moved against the free people of Greece. And in this case, as in the ancient clash, the free West has won. Our defenses stand fast against the human tides of the Orient. Tiny Midway Island itself rolls back the barbarians, and our great Hawaiian stronghold is unshaken.

It would be rash to say at this stage of the war that there is no more peril in the Pacific. The snake has been "scotched but not killed." Japan still has great striking power when her forces are concentrated. And racial pride, so intense that it becomes a weakness, will doubtless bring fanatical outbursts before the war is ended. But already, in this short and preliminary phase of the war, the naval and air forces of the United States have shown their moral and mental superiority. With the superior striking power that is now gathering, in spite of heavy involvement in the Atlantic, the United States begins to see, in the near future, undisputed mastery of the Pacific area.

TIN CANS

The time has come when the government wants the tin from the used can. It makes these suggestions for their salvage:

First, throw away paint, oil, varnish, floor polish, evaporated milk and conical-topped cans. Their shape makes it too hard to clean and prepare them for salvage.

Take out bottom as well as top of those that are left. Wash the can thoroughly, removing paper labels. Flatten them, leaving just room enough to see through. Keep them in a dry place apart from other rubbish.

Some means will be found of collecting the cans, and word will be given when the time comes.

The W.P.B. says that almost all the tin on cans can be salvaged. In happier times, it costs more to de-tin them than to prepare new tin; but these are not happy nor easy times, and tin is greatly needed. For some purposes no other metal seems to take its place. Bushings for airplane motors, for example.

BOND SALES

It is reassuring to learn that sales of War Savings Bonds for the month of May were $634,356,000, nicely surpassing the $600,000,000 quota. Continental U.S.A. fell a little behind two important territorial outposts. Hawaii bought more than six times its quota, and Alaska two and one-half times. Utah did the best among the states, with 171 per cent. It is decent and charitable not to mention the low states, which will doubtless do better from now on.

This is only a slight start on the real job. If the war is going to cost $200,000,000,000, which is what the government is figuring on, people have hardly begun buying. It is the best and safest form of thrift, and a neat combination of profit and patriotism.

STANDARDIZED WORLD

Yes, "it's a small world, after all." How small it has become, people hardly realize yet. Take this matter of military weapons. Always in the past, nations have made their own weapons. Now Britain and the United States are standardizing their fighting tools, to make weapons and equipment interchangeable. It will be done on a vast scale, and other nations fighting on the same side will soon be using identical weapons, made by identical machinery.

If the war ends in a real peace, so that there can be economic unity and equal trade opportunities, this tendency may spread rapidly over the world. People in all the civilized countries could have, in large part, the same goods of a thousand kinds, made by like and interchangeable machinery. This would mean world unity to a degree hardly imagined yet.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act) SHOULD EVERYBODY TAKE VITAMINS?

There is not the slightest doubt about the value of vitamins to health. The discovery of vitamins, their presence in food, and their action in nutrition is the greatest discovery in nutrition for many years.

When we think of the value of vitamin A in eye diseases, of vitamin B complex in digestive disturbances, of vitamin C in preventing scurvy, of vitamin D in preventing rickets, and vitamin E in deficiency of the reproductive organs, it would seem like good sense for everybody to take a small or large quantity of all the vitamins daily. In fact, some employers, to maintain the health of their employees, are distributing vitamins to these employees through their health or nursing departments.

What about this giving of vitamins to everybody, whether or not they need them? Would it not be well for all workers in these war days to take extra vitamins and not depend entirely on food stuffs, wholesome as they may be?

There is no doubt that there is a definite need for more vitamins in those who are working harder than has been their custom. These individuals will show this need in various ways and extra vitamins, more food, or more frequent meals (using the usual amount of food in the twenty-four hours) should be given to them.

Fortunately, the Committee of Nutrition in Industry and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council has been studying this question and find that "little attention has been paid to the kinds of food served in the cafeterias, that is from the standpoint of nutrition." A qualified nutritionist who classified seven hundred lunch trays passing through the cafeteria line in a New England factory considered 390 as inadequate or insufficient, and 310 of them good. Similar conditions were found in other plants. Yet in some of these plants consideration was being given to the idea of giving vitamins to all employees without finding out whether or not the food already supplied was not a complete diet in itself.

The Committee on Nutrition states that the use of nutritive foods—foods containing the necessary vitamins and minerals and possessing the other factors—aside from vitamins—is the proper way to make sure of an all round nourishing diet. It is known that vitamins are valuable and are now being put into bread and milk, but for everybody to take vitamins is, in the opinion of the committee, unnecessary.

Eating Your Way to Health

RETRIBUTION WILL BE SURE AND SWIFT

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY
"THE SANGAMON," by Edgar Lee Masters.

People who have driven across central Illinois have most likely crossed a rather insignificant stream, usually muddy or perhaps a dark brownish-green, and if they have been observant they will have noted the sign placed at the bridge approach by the state highway department. It will have said "Sangamon River," and it will have meant exactly nothing to them.

But the Sangamon means a good deal to Edgar Lee Masters. It is not far from his famous Spoon River, for one thing. The Spoon River empties into the Illinois from the other side and a little upstream from the Sangamon. The latter is larger, has more branches, and has the advantage of flowing past New Salem, which vanished village is now restored and a tourist center. Like the Spoon River, the Sangamon also flows through the land of Mr. Masters' memories, and it is these memories of which he writes in "The Sangamon."

Most of the books of the Rivers of America series deal largely with formal history—"The Sangamon" does not. It is true that the river traverses the Lincoln country, and again and again the name of Lincoln enters Mr. Masters' story. Anne Rutledge, too, and the Herndons and a good many others. For the most part the story is of the little people who live near the river in little towns which have been born, and have died, like the people themselves. It is an unhurried story which the author abandons at will to follow some lead set up by a chance phrase. Sometimes it is a little confused—people mentioned in connection with one little village turn up unexpectedly in another, and you wonder where they have met them before.

But the point of it all is that Mr. Masters is out to make you understand what there is to know and love in a prairie state like Illinois. He wants you to understand the prairie itself, often beautiful, sometimes terrible. The towns have a flavor of their own, and the farms are wholly unlike the rock patches of New England, for example, or the bare bones of the great Southwest. The people also have an odd flavor—everybody in that part of Illinois is from somewhere else, albeit many have lived a century or a century and a half near the Sangamon. You may wonder why the book is so exactly "right," until you realize that its flavor is the flavor of Mr. Masters himself.

For the first time in Dublin's history, birds referred to as "crows," although probably they were rooks or blackbirds, were offered in the municipal market, and all were quickly sold to be made into rook pie.

Explains Prices and Control Program

Ithaca, N. Y. — One common question of farmers, in regard to the President's seven-point program to "control the cost of living," is: "Wouldn't it be a good thing for New York farmers if farm prices were allowed to keep right on rising?"

(At present raw and unprocessed commodities are not affected by price ceilings because they have not risen to certain levels or to parity.)

Prof. Van B. Hart of the department of agricultural economics at Cornell, answers the question in this way:

"Suppose you want to put some things overhead in your garage. You do not want to ask your neighbor to return the step ladder he borrowed, so you take some boxes and the kitchen stool and build a foundation to stand on while you put away the sleds, the skis, and the snow shovels. The higher you build the foundation, however, the shakier it gets. You have a choice of working on a lower level and being safe, or you run the risk at a higher level, of a sprained ankle or a broken arm."

"The present situation of the New York farmer is a little like that. Farm prices under a program aimed to keep prices from going on a rampage would not be as good as those under freely rising prices, but may be the lesser of two evils compared with what happened before and after World War I. Farmers still remember that."

"It may be better to forgo some higher incomes during a war period in order to avoid the drastic drops in prices that might follow."

According to Dr. Hart, prices of things farmers buy in the United States are about in line with prices of things they sell, but "this does not go for New York state where wages which are not included in parity computations, are much higher than for the country as a whole."

"New York farmers have, of course, benefited from the improved relation between prices of things bought and sold, but not to the same extent as have other sections of the country."

"But if there is a choice of stopping a further big rise or to go through another depression, it may be better to forego some higher incomes during a war period in order to avoid the drastic drops in prices that might follow."

Zebra Becomes Pet
A baby zebra is the constant companion of the Rev. Bristow Collyer at Belt Bridge, South Africa. The pet, which drinks four bottles of milk daily, was captured by the pastor nearby and carried home on his back. It is believed to have been separated from its mother when lions dispersed a herd.

Britain's Women's Land Army now has a Forestry Section.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

St. Peter's Dramatic Club on December 28, 1925, presented successfully the farce "The Whole Town's Talking" in the school hall. Among those in the cast were Robert Carter, Caroline Struble, Agnes Bruck, Frank Leirey, Caroline Bruck, Andrew Juhl, George Reis, Anna Spader, Helen Delemater, Rita Ketterer and Oscar Sickler.

At various times in this column I have written of Harold Linson, known to his many friends as "Sen", who was the downtown reporter of The Freeman until his death in 1915. Linson had an excellent command of English, and his stories of the meetings of the Common Council were newspaper classics. He was one of the best newspaper men to ever work on a Kingston newspaper.

I recall that the uptown man in those days was Edward L. Merritt, who covered most of the important news stories that occurred in the years at the turn of the century. Mr. Merritt during the Crane administration served the city as city treasurer, and he also served as a postmaster of Kingston.

In the days when Mr. Merritt and Mr. Linson were active in newspaper work others I recall were Wally Becker, at that time with The Express, and later with The Freeman, and Joe Drake with the Leader.

Other old time newspaper men who are still in harness are Joe Sullivan and Bart Houghtaling, linotype operators with The Freeman. Mr. Sullivan is also an excellent reporter and in a pinch can turn out extremely readable copy. Mr. Houghtaling has been with The Freeman for more than half a century, and is the oldest man in years of service now in active harness in Kingston.

Leaving back the leaves of the city's history to December, 1925, I recall that Frederick A. Meeker was elected master of Rondout Lodge, No. 343, F. & A. M.

Mr. Meeker is still an active member of that lodge. For a number of years he was connected with the retail coal business in Kingston, and is now with the Babcock Farms dairy.

In looking back over the years among the many men I recall who were active in the business life of the city was the late J. T. Johnson, who had a hardware store on the Strand and served as a member of the water board during the Canfield administration.

With Mr. Johnson in the hardware store were the late John Rowland of Spring street, and Irving W. Scott, who is now with the Canfield Supply Co. I also recall John Monroe and Harry G. Smith who were connected with the Cyclopedia interests for a number of years.

Four Drown in Lake When Boat Capsizes

Montville, Conn., June 15 (AP)—Two small children and two adults lost their lives here Sunday when they were cast from a capsizing rowboat into Gardner Lake. Two other persons were rescued.

The victims were Joseph Dicarlo, 5, Joseph Pusateri, 4, Frank Dicarlo, 70, all of Norwich, and Mrs. Charles Lacavera, 40, of Chicago, Ill.

The accident occurred as the group, among a family party on an all-day outing at the lake, reached a point 1,000 feet from shore.

Michael Pusateri and Mrs. Joseph Pusateri, both of Norwich, were saved by three Coast Guardsmen from New London holidaying at the lake.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, now has 68 micro-omnibus, or "jitney" lines.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Temperamental Thief
Denver — The burglar was disquieted when he found only 15 cents in a piggy bank after breaking into the John Johnson apartment.

So he smashed two dozen eggs on the walls and ceiling.

Trails Parallel
Los Angeles — Arthur W. Anderson, South Pasadena, and William M. A. Brandt, North Hollywood, met for the first time when they boarded a troop train in 1917.

They became corporals, then sergeants and finally second lieutenants at the same time, and sailed on the same transport for France.

Yesterday, after a lapse of 23 years, they met again. Both reported to Col. William A. Aird for duty as army captains.

Borrowing Trouble
San Diego — Life in the Marine Corps—The leathernecks at Camp Elliott are searching the dry tablelands around their post for five rattlesnakes.

Purpose—to consummate a deal whereby the San Diego zoo has agreed to accept the rattlers in exchange for a cheetah, a jungle cat from India useful as a mascot.

Dental Hazard
Chicago—Precautionary note: Don't forget to take your false teeth out if bombs start falling.

Dr. Charles F. Deatherage, member of the dental advisory committee of the Illinois State Council of Defense, warned that small removable bridges may be swallowed as a result of the vacuum created by a bomb explosion, and full or partial dentures may become secondary projectiles following a blow on the head.

Thoroughness
Chicago — The thieves who invaded the offices of the W. W. Stewart Auto Sales Company did not overlook them.

They ransacked the place, took $3 in a cash box; consumed a dozen bottles of soft drinks; took the keys for the cars in an adjoining used car lot; stole a second hand car, returned it smashed, and then took a later model, which they didn't return.

Dummy Clocks Lose Time
Indianapolis — The hands on these dummy clocks and watches which signify jewelers' shops are not going to point to 8:19 anymore in Indiana.

The Watchmakers' Association of Indiana voted today to change them to 7:55—as a reminder of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Fruits May Be Canned Without Use of Sugar
Ithaca, N. Y. — With the fruit canning season about to start, the New York state college of home economics calls attention to the fact that all fruits may be canned successfully without sugar.

They may also be canned with only a little sugar, or with part sugar and part honey or corn sirup. Here are the suggested procedures:

Juicy fruits, such as berries, cherries and plums may be canned in their own juice. Use 3½ teaspoon of salt for each pint of fruit and add boiling water to within ¼ inch of the top of the jar. As far as possible fill the jars with the water in which the fruit was pre-cooked.

Thin or very thin sirup may be used in place of the medium and heavy sirups frequently used in other years. To make very thin sirup, use 1 cup of sugar to 4 cups of liquid; to make thin sirup, use 1 cup of sugar to 3 cups of liquid. The liquid may be either water or juice that has been extracted from the ripe fruits. In making the sirup, add the sugar to the liquid and heat it only until the sugar is dissolved.

Since all corn sirups are not alike, no one rule for substitution can be given. However, about a third of the amount of sweetening used may be corn sirup, which is about a third as sweet as sugar. Since it is liquid, it will be thinner and less sweet than an all-sugar sirup.

Up to half of the amount of sweetening used may be honey. If a strong-flavored honey is used however, it may offset the flavor of the fruit. By experimenting, a person may prefer the flavor of some honeys with some fruits.

Washington In Wartime
By Jack Stinnett

Washington — Any time you want in Washington these days—and even if you don't—you can get a confused argument about the deportation order of Harry Renton Bridges, the west coast longshoremen's union and CIO leader.

The argument is confused because it always ends up in two questions: (1) Why hasn't the Communist Party protested? (2) Why did U. S. Attorney General Francis Biddle do it, especially in view of the fact that President Roosevelt had just commuted the 4-year sentence of Earl Browder, head of the Communist party in the United States, to 14 months, thereby releasing him from prison?

The answer to the first is that when the Communist Party chiefs, in the midst of celebrations over the release of Browder, had recovered from their consternation (a high party official was heard to shout when the news arrived at one headquarters: "My Lord, what do we do now?") they concluded that the party couldn't possibly protest publicly the Bridges deportation order.

Why? Because that would be a public admission that Biddle's major premise as applied to this specific individual was right—that Bridges is or was a member of the Communist party.

But even though they still are enjoying the release of Browder, don't think that this slap at the party is going unnoticed, if not by the party, at least by party sympathizers. There'll be a flood of letters to congressmen and other government officials protesting the order.

A trickle has already started and if some of these are any indication, the tub-thumping is going to be to the tune that Biddle is just a legal punk and that by ordering Bridges kicked back to his native Australia, he is sabotaging the United States war effort.

How can war workers give their all, they say, when one of their most important labor leaders has been booted out of the country by one of the highest officials of the United States?

Some of these first letters come from persons known to be members of what the Department of Justice considers Communist party front organizations, not affiliated but sympathetic, and these may be considered the ones who will carry the hod in the verbal fight to keep Bridges here.

As for the answer to that No. (2), it is simple. Aside from the evidence as Biddle saw it (he saw it differently from his own Board of Immigration Appeals, and reversed it by this order) what else could he do, without assuming the responsibility for the long-embattled Bridges from here on out?

By this order and the announced decision of Bridges' attorney to fight the order, the case goes to the federal court and maybe even to the United States supreme court. It isn't that Biddle has passed the buck; it is just that ONLY by ordering Bridges deported, could this country AND Bridges get a final decision on this controversy which has been kicking around on the American scene for too many years now.

PORT EWEN

Song Service

Port Ewen, June 15—Last evening the Intermediate C. E. Society sponsored a special service in the Reformed Church. An appreciative congregation enjoyed the whole hour. The leader of the evening was Miss Dorothy Hornbeck. Charles Benton led in prayer and the scripture was read by Kenneth Beesmer. A mixed quartet from the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, composed of the Misses Shirley Fowler and Roberta Hotelling and Henry Hopper and Robert Messinger, sang two selections, "Beautiful Savior" and "Day Is Dying in the West." The Rev. John Mullenberg, assistant pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church was the speaker of the evening. He had his trombone to lead in the singing and played as an offertory solo, "Finlandia," by Sibelius. The Rev. George Berens introduced the Rev. Mr. Mullenberg as a fellow student of college and seminary and a prospective missionary to China, who would lead in group singing and give the message of the evening. Mr. Mullenberg taught a negro spiritual, "Shine on Me," and led in "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," giving a bit of the background of these negro songs in introduction. After a brief comment on the life of George Matheson, a blind Scot preacher and author of the hymn, "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," he led the congregation in the singing of that hymn. He then gave a brief talk on the "Challenge of Christ," telling of the reasons for his decision to go into the mission field. He closed his remarks with the congregation singing, "America the Beautiful," in honor of Flag Day after which, with the room darkened, the spiritual, "Shine on Me," and prayer by the Rev. George Berens, closed the service. Other members of the C. E. taking part were Herbert Ferguson, Matthew Davis, John Benton and Ross Beesmer, who took up the collection.

Village Notes

Mr. Benjamin Dykeman and daughter, Miss Rosalind Dykeman, of Poughkeepsie, were the week-end guests of Miss Mary Bishop.

Mr. and Mrs. Eltinge Tinney and family were the week-end guests of Mr. Tinney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tinney.

At the Children's Day service at the Methodist Church yesterday morning the following were baptized: Sandra Edith, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Deane, Jr.; John Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Short, and Donald McWhorter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Tinnie.

The Port Ewen Presentation Holy Name Society will hold its last monthly meeting until fall this evening in St. Leo's hall. Following the business meeting there will be entertainment and refreshments.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Fire House.

The Community Men's Club softball team will play The Elmendorf Street Presbyterian team tomorrow evening at Loughran Park in Kingston at 6:30 o'clock.

Kiwanians Open 27th Convention In Cleveland Today

Cleveland, June 15—Over 5,000 delegates and visitors from the U. S. and Canada are expected here for Kiwanis International's 27th annual convention.

Four days of business sessions and conferences are scheduled for planning war activities for the 2,180 clubs over the North American continent.

The theme of the convention is "Victory—by United Effort—by Individual Service."

For the third time Cleveland is host to a convention of Kiwanis International. The first one was held in 1916 and the second in 1921.

Charles S. Donley, of Pittsburgh, president, is presiding at all sessions. He was elected a year ago in Atlanta.

"Every plan we make must take into consideration the building of military and civilian morale," Mr. Donley told the delegates. "Kiwanis is strictly a morale building organization. Home morale supports the battle fronts. Our strength lies in our 26 years of experience in all types of community work. We have a well-trained organization which can help win the war. In over 2180 communities throughout the U. S. and Canada we are engaged in war work," he said.

Conferences will plan child welfare, youth activities, urban-rural relations, health programs and other types of civic work. One of the largest conferences will discuss ways to bring all community groups into the war effort. The organization of community councils, in which all groups will have representation, will be urged.

During the coming week all local clubs will observe All-Kiwanis week. This occasion brings together the 113,000 members for an expression of united fellowship.

Canadian Speaker Heard

Leonard W. Brockington, of Ottawa, Ont., former assistant to Premier MacKenzie King, told delegates that this war is conflict of "the order of the New World against the world order as Hitler desires it. Free men are marching and there are many at our side," he said.

"Our united and growing strength is striking against the Axis powers where there is an increasing tide of unrest."

"We of Canada and the United States have never been guilty of aggression. We cherish no hates, we seek no revenge, we pursue no aggrandizement. We have had to fight to defend our liberties. We fight, too, for those millions of humble, homeless people in Europe and Asia who some day will have a happy reunion around the hearth of freedom."

The following speakers will be heard during the week:

Cats Thwart Blackout

Cats were blamed in court for the failure of a blackout in Wrexham, England. Joseph Griffiths, arrested because lights were on, said his cats often occupied a shelf near an electric light switch, and he felt sure they were responsible for snapping on the switch after he had put out the lights. Nevertheless, he was fined $8.

THE PROOF OF FRIENDSHIP

Just help your friends in trouble and cheer them on the way. 'Twill give their lives more gladness; 'Tis well worthwhile to-day.

A tear for the broken hearted, a word for the man that's blue, A helping hand for the aged, adds strength and courage new. 'Tis a little thing to offer; just the light of a quiet smile, But the joy it brings to others will make the deed worth while. Then watch your step my brother; there's service you can do, It may be time for action, that proves your friendship true.

—Harry Browne

Prospective Employer—Are you an expert accountant?

Applicant—Yes, sir.
Prospective Employer—Your written references seem all right, but tell me more about yourself.

Applicant—Well, my wife kept a household account for 30 days. One night after dinner I sat down and in less than an hour found out how much we owed our grocer.

Prospective Employer—Hang up your hat and coat. The job's yours.

A husband whose wife was somewhat reckless in her spending asked her to keep a written account of her money, in and out. She agreed it was fair. So he bought her a little notebook; on the left-hand pages she was to list the money he gave her, with dates and amounts. On the right-hand pages she was to list the money spent, with dates and what for.

At the end of the month he looked at her book. At the left, sure enough, the amounts were meticulously entered in beautiful script, with dates. All was letter-perfect, in apple-pie order.

He felt much encouraged. But when his eyes shifted to the right-hand page, he realized that he was dealing with someone who for better or worse was his equal. On that page, in a lovely feminine hand, the little woman had written three words, Spent it all.

Save Trucks, Tires Dairymen Are Urged

Ithaca, N. Y.—Dairy farmers can help the effort by moving their milk to country plants with the least waste of rubber, time, and material; economic hauling is essential, says Steward Johnson of the agricultural economics department at Cornell University.

Unless farmers make voluntary adjustments, regulation of farm trucks by the Office of Defense Transportation is a possibility, he points out. Orders have already been issued as to the retail and wholesale distribution of milk in city markets, and to private carriers with routes more than 15 miles in length, covering more than one urban community.

Mr. Johnson cites some possible economies in hauling milk to country plants:

A farmer may bring in milk for several of his neighbors. One plant manager in the New York milk shed, who encourages this practice, says loads of 30 to 40 cans are the most efficient.

In some areas, savings may be possible, through a shift to collection routes by some farmers who now deliver milk from their own farms.

Opportunities exist in eliminating small routes and loading the larger trucks now in operation more nearly to capacity. Reorganization of hauling routes is best done by a committee from each plant, representing truckers, individual hauliers, and patrons who hire their milk hauled.

Greater economies, of course, would come from a shift of patrons from one plant to another so that milk from each farm will go to the nearest plant.

Moral Law Would Help World Peace, Says Msgr. Sheen

the revolution, started principally among the defeated nations. These nations he said were Germany and he also said Italy had been "defeated" in that she had not been given all of the booty which she had hoped for from England. Russia was also defeated, defeated through the revolution within that country.

Hits "Isms"

And in referring to Russia, Father Sheen said that while Russia was fighting on our side in the war she was not fighting for our cause in the "revolution," for he said we are fighting now against that philosophy which says that the individual has no value and that totalitarianism is the value in this revolution. Between Communism, Fascism and Nazism he said there was but the difference between burglary and larceny and he said all three of the "isms" are bad.

Restoration of moral law is the first great offensive of a great deal.

"What are we fighting for and what are we fighting against?" he asked his audience. He said that in 20 years we will come to know what transformation is now taking place during this "revolution." We have already passed from a free to a planned economy. For the past 200 years the world has been engaged in a selfish struggle and selfishness has been the characteristic note of the past 200 years. This selfishness has brought about a divorce between the individual and law and authority and a monopolistic capitalism has isolated the man with money. Man has said "I have this money and I can do with it what I want and no church, no state can question my right to possession."

When any nation persists in that philosophy trouble is ahead. That was the cause of the first World War, with each nation having its own particular ego and he said since then men have been no better.

Describes Era

We are living in an era which might be termed a "civilization of individuals" in which individuals are not bound to each other religiously, politically or economically. In a religious revolution men are separated from the church and then from each other. Economic or capitalist individualism separates man from his neighbor. This idea that we can do as we please when taken on by a nation leads only to war.

There are two great events marking this era. The war and the revolution and the war is but an episode of the revolution and he said the revolution would outlast the war. The Rev. Sheen cautioned people to keep distinct the war and the revolution.

"Russia is fighting in our side of the war and we are grateful for that. In the revolution, please God, I would not consider we are with Russia." He said that he did not take the same viewpoint as journalists whose thinking was not profound. These men live for the events of the day. He also said he did not agree with Mr. Kaltenborn who "once slept alongside a microphone" and he pointed out the events of the world were not made in a day.

He reminded his listeners that Lenin had said that he would be seen three quarters of the people downed provided the remainder could be made communist. He said Hitler has written that he cared nothing for the lives of three millions of men if his cause could be sustained while Mussolini has written that the state is all and the individual nothing.

Evil is the method and goal of this revolution and these new philosophies repudiate justice and mercy. We are fighting against this philosophy which says the individual has no value and that totalitarianism is the value in this revolution. The leaders of this evil have appeal to the masses of their countries and we are pitted against a tremendous force. The appeal of the leaders who say individualism is nothing is strong but their people believe in it and are content to die if their burial notices may read "he died in peace with Hitler."

Moral Law Needed

What is most needed is the restoration of moral law and the devotion of economic resources for the common good of man, said the speaker.

America has been indifferent to Christianity and this must be overcome, urged the people to "take up the Cross of Christ."

"America needs the offensive of a great ideal and if we have that we can sweep the world," he said. We fight against three things, the idea that individual man is worthless, that only totality has value

Educator and Orator

and the method and the goal of the evil revolution.

Prior to Father Sheen's talk Andrew T. Gilday, chairman of the committee in charge of the affair, spoke briefly. He said that Monsignor Drury of St. Mary's Church, who had been on the speaker's program, was unable to be present since he was to entertain Archbishop Spellman at the church. He paid tribute to the success of the services and said the success was due to the hard work by the committee which had the affair in charge. He presented Judge Raymond J. Mino, who presided as toastmaster and introduced the Rev. Henry E. Herdengen, chaplain of Kingston Council, who in turn introduced the speaker of the day.

Prior to the introduction of Monsignor Sheen, Father Herdengen spoke briefly on the conditions brought about by the war and he likened some nations of Europe to a puppet show. The leaders, who did not trust one another, pulled the strings while the international puppet show went on. The lives of these leaders are insincere and utterly selfish, he said and the people of these countries are unsuspecting puppets of the hollowess and the falseness of their leaders' promises. Judge Mino before adjourning the session called attention to the 28 members who were in the armed service and a prayer for their safety was offered by Father Herdengen.

The following members were in charge of the arrangements: P. G. K. Andrew T. Gilday, chairman; Past Grand Knights Patrick T. Murphy, Joseph F. Sullivan, William B. Byrne, William F. Leechie, Allen A. Baker, Robert A. Donnaruma, Joseph J. Murphy, Joseph F. Stout, William A. Kelly. Brothers Albert J. Weierich, Richard T. Fav, Michael A. Abdallah, D. Fred Balzer, John B. Whittaker, John P. Whalen, Joseph F. Saccaman, Fred F. Ferraro, Guido J. Napoletano, Peter J. Halloran, Andrew J. Cook, Nicholas L. Bruck, Francis G. Clarke.

Attend Service

Members and friends of the Kingston Model Railroad Club attended the evening church service at the Bloomingdale Reformed Church at Bloomingdale, Sunday. The Rev. W. K. Haysom, minister of the church and president of the local model engineers, delivered a sermon on the topic, "The Trip of Life," in which he compared travel on the railroad, governed by the rules and regulations from the chief dispatcher, to the journey along the road of life with Jesus Christ as the chief dispatcher.

Extension Service Handed Duties

Saving of Waste Fats Used for Glycerine

Ithaca, N. Y., June 15—The task of organizing and administering the collection of waste fats from rural kitchens of the state has been given to the extension service of the state colleges at Cornell University.

The fats are needed to make glycerine, which is used in making explosives. The supply of vegetable fats from the Far East has been greatly reduced by the war in the Pacific.

Mrs. Helen P. Hofer, assistant state leader of home demonstration agents, is to be in charge of the rural work in the state.

Another recent job given the extension service is to acquaint New York's rural people with President Roosevelt's 7-point program to control living costs. The Extension Minute Man forces are helping to give information to all the counties.

Director L. R. Simons says that this program, designed to help prevent inflation, is an important part of the war effort and will affect every person. He adds that it aims to interpret to farm folks the situation as to how the program affects them directly. The administration advocates the purchase of war bonds, heavier taxes, price and wage regulation, and rationing, all designed to keep the cost of living from spiraling upward.

A third effort at present is to bring to the attention of farmers the need for conserving trucks and tires through efficient hauling of goods to and from market and through the co-operation of neighbors.

Cole's Circus to Play In Forsyth Park

James M. Cole's motorized circus will play in Forsyth Park on Wednesday afternoon and evening, June 24, under the auspices of the Excelsior Hose Co. Permission to use the park for the circus was recently granted by the city authorities.

One of the hits on the program is the lesson in bareback riding when any boy in the audience who is ambitious to become a circus performer is invited to enter the ring and ride a pony. To prevent accidents a safety belt suspended from a revolving arm is used. While this device protects the boy from nasty falls, it also gets him into a series of ludicrous positions.

With the circus is Jumbo, the elephant featured by Billy Rose in his New York Hippodrome production. With Jumbo appears a truck, a camel, a Shetland pony and a Great Dane dog.

A number of well known circus stars are with the circus this year.

Broadcasts for Teachers

Troy, N. Y., June 15 (AP)—Radio broadcasts will supplant 10 October zone meetings of the New York State Teachers' Association, in a gasoline and tire-saving move. Dr. Arvie Eldred, secretary of the association, announced yesterday broadcasts will be arranged on wartime and post-war school work. These were the main subjects to have been discussed at meetings, scheduled for Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Albany, New York, Hempstead, L. I., Ithaca, Watertown, Potsdam and Ticonderoga.

Cleutt Not a Candidate

Troy, N. Y., June 15 (AP)—Rep. E. Harold Cleutt, Republican congressman from the 29th District for three terms, is not a candidate for reelection. Making this announcement last night, Cleutt said he will support Dean Taylor, Rensselaer county G. O. P. chairman, for the nomination. The district comprises Warren, Washington, Saratoga and Northern Rensselaer counties.

Sgt. J. A. Hopkins Completes Long Police Service

Sergeant John A. Hopkins of the Kerhonkson State Police station, the first man appointed to the New York State Police when it was organized in 1917, Friday completed a quarter of a century of service.

He and others of the original "camp men"—those who attended Camp Newaygo at Fayetteville, will attend a 25th anniversary party at the University Club in Albany June 20.

The guest of honor will be Colonel George Fletcher Chandler, the organizer of the New York State Police and the first commanding officer. With Sergeant Hopkins, because of their attendance at the original police camp, are Captain Daniel Fox, commanding officer of Troop C, and Lieutenant John J. Warner of the same troop, the public work of which includes Sullivan and Ulster counties, and Sergeant A. L. Voris and Trooper Peter Burke of Troop K, the police work of which includes Orange and Rockland counties.

About a score of veteran troopers are expected to attend the dinner next Saturday. The camp at which they were first trained was largely a result of the inspection and work of Katherine Mayo, novelist, and her friend, Miss Moyca Newell, and was named for them.

In Medical Corps

Camp Lee, Va., June 15—Following his induction into the Army of the United States, George Krumm of 171 Lincoln street, Kingston, is now stationed at the Medical Replacement Center here. His training will consist of actual maneuvers illustrating medical and evacuation problems encountered on the battlefield as well as basic military work. As a Medical Department soldier, he is joining thousands of enlisted men, doctors, dentists and nurses in the all-important mission "to conserve the fighting strength" of the army.

Returns to Camp

PVT. LESLIE L. MUNSON

Leslie L. Munson, private first class, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Munson of Port Ewen, has returned to Spring Lake, Fla., after an extended furlough spent with his parents. He entered the army January 7, 1942, "Bud," as he is known to his associates, was inducted at Camp Upton, L. I., and after five days, was shipped to Camp Lee, Va., for a period of nine weeks. He was placed as a mechanic in the Quartermaster Corps and he rated second highest in the final test. He was one of the four chosen to be transferred to Tallahassee, Fla. In a short time he was a private first class and promoted to chief mechanic at Dale Mabry Field, Fla.

Berries Are Now Reaching Markets

Fresh Strawberries Supply Vitamin C Content

Ithaca, N. Y., June 15—Home-grown strawberries are on the markets around the state. Growing conditions have generally been favorable and prospects are for an average or better-than-average crop, reports the college of agriculture at Cornell.

Since this is the season when the berries come from nearby producing areas, and with a good supply on hand, now is the time to eat them fresh and to process the crop in the home for use next winter, says the state college of home economics at Cornell which comments further:

Few foods compare with fresh strawberries in flavor and aroma, and when fresh they are close competitors of oranges in vitamin C content. They supply the ideal finish to a meal at this time of year, whether indoors or out.

To make a good picnic dessert, toast thin slices of bread over the coals, butter them generously, and pile sliced and sweetened strawberries on top of them. Thin cream goes well with this dish; or the regulation shortcake, a rich biscuit dough rolled thin and baked at home, may be toasted over the coals and a three-tier strawberry shortcake made from it.

"The pseudo-shortcake made with a cake base was always a mistake. Now, in these days of sugar conservation, is the time to get away from it," say foods specialists at the college. They point out also that the making of strawberry ice cream or of strawberry milk sherbet are delicious ways to use the berries.

Cub Pack Rally Staged in Park

Reformed Church Group Has Outdoor Event

Cub Pack No. 12 of the First Reformed Church in Kingston held an out-of-door rally at Forsyth Park, Saturday afternoon and evening. Many parents and friends of the boys were present to witness the games and stunts carried out by the Cub pack, which were under the supervision of Cubmaster Robert Soper and the Den mothers and fathers assisting.

During the afternoon games of competition were enjoyed by the boys and appropriate award ribbons were presented to the winning Den.

Following a picnic supper each boy and guest enjoyed ice cream provided for them by the Cub pack. Due to the occasional rains, the planned campfire meeting could not be carried out; the monthly Pack meeting was held under the Park Pavilion. Following the opening ceremonies, the various dens provided entertainment by performing stunts which included parents as well as the boys. Mr. Soper presented Scout Albert Short, Den Chief of Den No. 4, with his shoulder strap.

Following are the results of the afternoon contests: Sack race, first place, Den No. 4; second place, Den No. 2; Obstacle race, first place, Den No. 2; second place, Den No. 4; Undressing relay, first place, Den No. 1; second place, Den No. 4.

Awards were made for advancement during the past month as follows:

Beast, John Naigles, Den No. 3; Wolf, Robert Dierck, Den No. 4; William Radcliff, Den No. 4; Gerald Freer, Den No. 4; Elliott Clark, Den No. 4; Chester Van Wagenen, Den No. 4; Bear Rank, Garret Short, Den No. 2; Paul Donahue, Den No. 3; Lion Rank, Jack Seidel, Den No. 2; Ronald Lord, Den No. 3; Wolf Silver Arrow, Donald Freese, Den No. 4. Jack Seidel and Ronald Lord were presented with the Webelos Badge, thus promoting these boys to Scouting.

Lend-Lease Aid Up to May Totalled $4,497,000,000

President Tells Congress Battle of Distribution Was Now in its Critical Phase

Washington, June 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt informed Congress today that lend-lease aid up to the end of May totalled $4,497,000,000 and that while the battle of production was on the way to being won, the battle of distribution was "in its critical phase."

"Our reservoir of resources is now approaching flood stage," he said. "The next step is for our military, industrial, and shipping experts to direct its full force against the centers of enemy power."

"Great Britain and the United States x x x are taking combined action to carry our men and weapons—on anything that will float or fly—to the places from which we can launch our offensives."

Roosevelt summed up for Congress the results of 15 months of lend-lease operations—with the emphasis finally shifted from foodstuffs and industrial materials to a preponderance of fighting weapons and military items.

The lend-lease program was instituted on March 11, 1941, and the aid extended since that time to the British commonwealth of nations and 35 other countries has mounted to $3,673,000,000 in goods and $824,000,000 in such services as repairing ships, ferrying aircraft and providing production facilities in this country.

The goods included $2,601,000,000 or articles transferred, that is, delivered to lend-lease nations at production or export points in this country. Of this amount, $2,138,000,000 has been exported.

The balance of the $3,673,000,000 is accounted for by articles awaiting transfer or use and those in process of manufacture.

Congress requires a report on lend-lease activities from the President every three months, and today's was the fifth. It outlined how the United Nations particularly Britain and the United States, were pooling their resources and raw materials and shipping and told of the mammoth strides in building up production of the things with which modern wars are fought.

Not in One Direction

The lend lease assistance is not moving entirely in one direction, the report showed. To the full extent of their ability, the President said, our allies are supplying us with things we need.

He mentioned food and housing and equipment for American troops in Britain and Australia, special machine tools and equipment for munitions plants, British anti-aircraft guns at vital bases, and British-developed plane detection devices.

When it comes to finally settling accounts at the end of the war, the report indicated that this country did not intend to demand repayment dollar for dollar, tank for tank, and plane for plane.

"The real costs of the war," it said, "cannot be measured, nor compared, nor paid for in money. They must be and are being met in blood and toil. But the financial costs of the war can and should be met in a way which will serve the needs of lasting peace and mutual economic well-being, x x x."

"And although the nations richest in resources are able to make larger contributions, the claim of war against each is relatively the same. Such a distribution of the financial costs of war means that no nation will grow rich from the war effort of its allies. The money costs of the war will fall according to the scale of equality in sacrifice, as in effort."

In many spheres where action is needed the report asserted, co-operative action among the United Nations is contemplated to fulfill a program of economic progress. Then the report added:

"It is hoped that plans will soon develop for a series of agreements and recommendations for legislation in the fields of commercial policy, of money and finance, international investment and reconstruction."

ally found the two men lying in the tall grass some 30 feet from the car. Shortly afterward Sheriff Anderson, who was on his way to Minnewaska came along and summoned the Humiston ambulance and Dr. Alfred M. Feldshuh of Kerhonkson. Sergeant Hopkins and Trooper Malahay, who had been notified at Minnewaska of the accident, also joined in the investigation. Hornick, who was unconscious when found, died a few minutes after the arrival of the doctor, from internal injuries and a fractured skull. Billows, who was injured internally and also suffered from a broken back, was taken to the Kingston Hospital in the Humiston ambulance, where he died from his injuries at 12:20 Sunday morning. Billows was partially conscious when picked up.

Coroner Frank J. McCordle was notified, and autopsies were ordered in the cases of both men.

Mother Clark Is Dead

Kansas City, June 15 (AP)—It's a sad day in middle western prisons—Mother Clark is dead. The mite-sized defender of the downtrodden and benefactor of thousands of convicts for 72 of her 97 years died last night of complications following a broken hip—caused by a running pedestrian who knocked her to the sidewalk. Back in 1870 Mrs. Clark watched two policemen beat a 13-year-old boy in an effort to make him admit breaking a window. She followed the lad to jail and obtained his release by proving a drunken man caused the damage. The incident precipitated a career of aid which brought her the affection and gratitude of thousands of convicts, and the respect and confidence of parole boards.

Young Man Refuses Ill-Fated Offers

One of the young men at Minnewaska is being congratulated on what would appear to be his fortunate escape from both of the fatal accidents which befell Minnewaska employees Saturday.

It is stated that on Saturday afternoon he declined an invitation to go in swimming with Leonard Costello, who drowned when he plunged into the lake to escape from the intense heat that afternoon. Later he declined an invitation to ride to Kerhonkson with John Hornick and Preston Billows, both of whom were fatally injured when their car was overturned.

Nine Additional Members Named

Quick Action Indicated by 'Little Byrd' Committee

Albany, N. Y., June 15 (AP)—Immediate action by the politically important "Little Byrd" Republican sponsored commission to investigate state financing and recommend economies was indicated today with appointment of nine additional members by G.O.P. legislative leaders.

Likelihood of criticism of the Democratic administration was strengthened by the inclusion of Richard Cuyler, president of the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, an organization long outspoken in favor of additional state economies.

Other commission members appointed by Joe R. Hanley, Republican leader, and Oswald D. Heck, also a Republican and speaker of the assembly, are:

Representing the senate: Arthur H. Wicks, Ulster county; Mrs. Rhoda Fox Graves, St. Lawrence county; Benjamin Feinberg, Clinton county, all Republicans.

Representing the assembly: Abbot Low Moffat, chairman of assembly ways and means committee; New York city, George Manning, Monroe county; William Doig, Franklin, all Republicans; and George F. Torsney, Queens, a Democrat.

The ninth member of the commission appointed by the legislative leaders is Harold J. Fisher, president of the State Civil Service Employees Association.

A tenth Democratic state senator will be named later to complete the commission membership. Democratic Governor Lehman previously appointed five Democrats:

J. Buckley Bryan, Robert M. Haig, Nathan Straus, William J. Dougherty, and William R. White, state superintendent of banking.

Republicans admittedly hope to strengthen their claims as the party of economy in the result of expected findings. The commission, with extensive powers to investigate and recommend, is allotted $50,000 for expenses.

In approving creation of the commission, the governors said, "I have no objection to this bill provided the commission does not include in its report policies that make a serious attempt to find the facts upon which a careful, scientific program of economies can be based."

Canning School Slated for City

Sessions Will Be Held in County Building

Women of Ulster county who are interested in beating the threatened shortage in canned goods, but who might like to "brush up" a bit on canning methods, are invited to attend the canning school to be held in the assembly room at the county building on Tuesday, June 16.

The school will be conducted by Mrs. Lillian Belton, who will demonstrate canning of cherries and berries. It is sponsored by the 4-H Club, but County Agent E. R. Bower says that it is not a 4-H project, is "open to anybody and everybody," and there will be no admission charge.

The school starts at 10 a. m. Tuesday and after a recess, for lunch will continue for a portion of the afternoon. Mr. Bower adds that the school is part of an effort to encourage canning of fruit for winter to offset the threatened shortage and is not a demonstration of any particular method, as both the pressure method and the old-fashioned open kettle method of putting up fruit will be demonstrated.

Five Arrested in City For Minor Violations

Five arrests were made in the city by the police over the weekend. Robert Bailey, 30, of Newburgh, was arrested charged with public intoxication. He posted bail for his appearance later in police court. According to the police they were forced to prevent him from driving his automobile.

Peter Egan, 62, of Albany, charged with loitering at Clinton avenue on Sunday, was given an opportunity of leaving the city.

Frank Mann, 68, and Joseph Watson, 67, both inmates in the City Home, were sent back to the home today after being arraigned in police court on charges of public intoxication.

Dennis Mulvihill, 62, of Ilion, charged with public intoxication, was given the opportunity of leaving the city.

Sees Possible Token Attack—New York, June 15 (AP)—Mayor LaGuardia said today the chances of an immediate attack on New York city were more remote than they were four or five weeks ago, but asserted that the enemy, in desperation, might attempt "a token attack if not a long and sustained one."

He made the remark in swearing in Arthur W. Wallander, deputy chief inspector in the police department, as chief of staff of the city's defense forces. He gave Wallander the rank of deputy mayor.

Glider Training—Washington, June 15 (AP)—To insure an adequate number of glider pilots the Army Air Forces removed today a requirement that candidates must have had prior glider training. The war department said the action was "expected to admit thousands of potential glider pilots who formerly were unable to qualify." The glider training was made available to all applicants between 18 and 36 who can meet the physical and mental requirements.

Six Consolidated Actions Started In Supreme Court

Six consolidated actions were taken up for trial this morning in supreme court before Justice Harry E. Schirck and a jury. The actions grow out of a collision between two cars at Wawarsing on the evening of July 3, 1941, and the question of personal injuries as well as property damage is involved.

John McGrath and his wife Inis McGrath bring two actions against Murray Hornick of New York to recover damages while Murray Hornick and three occupants of his car, driven by his brother, Leo Hornick, bring actions against Mrs. McGrath.

On the evening of the accident Mrs. McGrath, a registered pharmacist engaged in her profession at the McGrath drug store in Ellenville, was driving toward Ellenville from Kingston. Leo Hornick was driving his brother's car from New York to Kerhonkson where they have a summer place.

Mrs. McGrath claims she was operating her car over a straight stretch of road and saw the Hornick car come around a curve. She drew over to the right as far as she could and stopped her car but the Hornick car came around the bend and over to her side of the road and sideswiped her car, damaging the car and injuring her. It then proceeded on past her car, forcing another car which was following her car to the ditch and struck a third car of one Jenkins.

Hornick claims that Mrs. McGrath drove her car over to the left of the road and struck the Hornick car damaging it and injuring three passengers in the car. It was raining slightly at the time.

Hornick claims the three passengers, Samuel Mindes, David Leinwand and Erick Meyer, were all injured and they seek to recover $20,000 each for the damage to the car was $189.70.

Mrs. McGrath asked $2,500 damages for her injuries and her husband seeks slightly over $100 for damages to his car.

Michael Nardone and Theodore J. Goldman appear for the occupants of the Hornick car and for Mr. Hornick and A. J. Cook and Le Roy Lounsbury for the McGraths.

The occupants of the Hornick car commenced actions in justice's court in town of Wawarsing while Mr. Lounsbury brought an action in supreme court about the same time. The actions have all been consolidated and are now being tried together.

Mrs. McGrath claims she suffered injuries which caused her to remain from her work for some time and caused her to hire help and her husband seeks damages to his car.

Mrs. McGrath was alone at the time but behind her was a second car which had followed her car for some distance. The occupants of this car claim she was at the extreme right of the road when the accident happened and the driver of the second car took to the ditch to avoid an accident. The owner of the third car, struck is not involved in the present actions.

Expect Japs to Try to Expand On the Aleutians

Washington, June 15 (AP)—An effort by the Japanese to expand their landings in the Aleutian Islands was expected by military authorities today, but whether they will try for knockout blows against important American bases was considered debatable.

A large-scale operation well over into the waters of the Western Hemisphere, it was said, would certainly bring a swarm of United States Army and Navy bombers down upon invading ships. Short of desperation, the Japanese might well wish to avoid such attacks at this time, so soon after their bitter experiences with American air power in the Coral Sea and Midway battles.

This would not, however, preclude further actions on the kind which last week put a small Japanese force on remote Attu Island, and the penetration of Jap ships in Kiska harbor in the Rat Islands group. Kiska is 560 miles west of Dutch Harbor and Attu is 770 miles west, location which places them at the extreme end of the Aleutians and relatively close to Japan.

The nature of the enemy force which conducted the Attu and Kiska operations has not been described by the navy, but experts said it probably was the usual task force composed of one or more aircraft carriers, heavy cruisers and destroyers which would be necessary to afford minimum protection to troop transports.

This, or similar task forces, probably still were at work in the Aleutian area, feeling out American defenses and maneuvering for landings on other islands. These operations, it was believed here, may lead to further attacks from their Dutch Harbor and other Alaskan defense posts.

Military experts emphasized, however, that the strategic areas which the enemy has most to fear were the Hawaiian sector in the central Pacific and the New Zealand-Australian front to the southwest, together with the chain of supply line islands in between.

Consequently, many were inclined to regard the Aleutian activities of the enemy as primarily in the nature of a diversion designed either (1) to draw defense strength from these other Pacific areas in the hope of clearing the way for a new offensive stroke in the southern or central Pacific or (2) to divert American forces to the north in order to prevent American attacks on the mandated islands which Japan has less capacity to defend since her heavy losses in ships and planes in the Coral Sea and Midway conflicts.

The supply of used egg crates continues to be less than enough to meet the needs of New York state poultrymen, it is reported.

which took a heavy toll of the Axis assault forces.

The battles in the tight-drawn sieges lines around the Crimean port and on the shell-pocked front east of Kharkov in the Ukraine continued with undiminished fury.

However, there were no further reports of German gains on either front since dispatches of yesterday which said the Germans had pushed forward in some sectors at Kharkov and turned loose a full-scale onslaught against Sevastopol in an attempt to smash the Russian defenses by sheer weight of men and armor.

Today in Washington

President Disposes of Most Perplexing Problem in the Handling of War Information in Press, Radio, Screen

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, June 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt has just disposed of one of the most perplexing problems that has confronted him since he entered the war—the handling of war information to be made available through press, radio and screen.

It took a long while for the President to issue his executive order which put Elmer Davis, newspaper writer, magazine contributor and radio commentator, in charge of the newly created Office of War Information. The delay was due to the consideration of how to handle the sensitive information given officials when they must be subsided in authority or separated from responsibility altogether.

Mr. Roosevelt just doesn't like to wound the feelings of any of his appointees. He would rather rearrange, consolidate and often create agencies just to avoid making some of his subordinates feel badly about it. There's a tenderness in this which is understandable even if regrettable. Mr. Roosevelt now has cleared the air, however, and given the country a splendid set-up that must inevitably win the confidence of the people.

For there is something more than a mere paper set-up of functions and duties outlined in the executive order. The President has, indeed, selected a man who symbolizes truth and integrity. This does not mean that the publicity men who have hitherto handled these matters in various agencies were lacking in either of these characteristics but it does mean that some of them didn't know where their allegiance really should rest—in trying to defend the administration against opposition attack because of acts of commission or omission in national policy or giving the people the facts irrespective of the natural repercussions of criticisms that came when the unhappy truth is bared.

Also, some of the officials charged with the duty of making information available inadvertently cast doubt on the validity of their own outgivings by making public speeches attacking opponents of the administration. Others made the mistake of supposing that they were charged with the duty of prejudicing the public mind for or against certain alleged outcroppings of hostile opinion inside our own country.

There is only one legitimate function for an office of war information. It is to make sure that the truth is accessible to the established channels of publication. There is no need for governmentally operated newspapers or magazines or radio systems or motion picture companies. The privately organized agencies will all cooperate in bringing the facts of the war to the people. They will go further—they will stimulate patriotism and strive for national unity in thousands of ways that will carry conviction to the public because the latter knows how to evaluate sincerity and devotion to America of these same newspapers, magazines, radio system and motion picture institutions.

What has been needed and will be certainly brought into being under Elmer Davis is a clearing house of data and especially a reconciliation of the viewpoint of the bureaucrat who instinctively wants to hide the adverse developments and the demands of the press for the truth so that the public shall not lose confidence in their regular institutions of information.

The job which the committee on information did under the leadership of George Creel in the last war was a very creditable one. He made one or two mistakes at the outset when he permitted a bit of exaggeration in a story of a submarine attack at sea but he learned his lesson and thereafter the press found in the Creel committee a helpful auxiliary in getting the truth about the war.

Mr. Davis has a tremendous responsibility. He takes office with the complete confidence of the press, radio, and screen. He will be subject to the temptations, the wiles and the charms of officialdom, he will hear the customary rationalizations in defense of suppression and he will be urged to help in this or that right or left wing maneuver so characteristic of the intrigue of our class war which goes on here irrespective of our foreign war. But if Mr. Davis sticks to one fundamental fact—that he is not the employee of an administration or of any single official but the employee of the American people—and if he is ready to resign at any time that he is asked to compromise with his conscience, he will emerge with credit for having done more than any other man in the maintenance of our war morale at high pitch and in causing our information to be accepted as truth throughout the world.

Uphold Conviction of Medical Association

Washington, June 15 (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals today upheld the conviction of the American Medical Association and the Medical Society of the District of Columbia on charges of illegal restraint of trade in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The two organizations were convicted in District Court last year of attempting to thwart the aims of Group Health Association, a cooperative of federal government employees.

Justice James M. Proctor assessed fines of $2,500 against the American Medical Association and $1,500 against the District Society.

All individual defendants named in the indictments along with the two organizations were acquitted at the trial.

Associate Justice Justin Miller wrote the unanimous opinion of the three judges of the appellate court.

Willkie and Fish In Verbal Battle

Pre-War Isolationist Issue Is Discussed

Albany, N. Y., June 15 (AP)—Wendell Willkie and Rep. Hamilton Fish blasted at each other across New York state in a week-end verbal battle over the pre-war isolationist issue.

Willkie opened fire in Watertown Saturday night, attacking what he termed Fish's "opposition to measures which would have permitted the United States to prepare itself before Pearl Harbor."

The 1940 Republican presidential candidate declared "Republicans desirous of indicating that Mr. Fish's viewpoint is not the policy of the party, either in the state or nation, should oppose him on his view and on his record" to the G. O. P. Association of New York's rural counties.

Rep. Fish, a 20-year veteran of Congress from the 26th District and an announced candidate for re-election this year, countered from Newburgh last night. He accused Willkie of "disservice" to the country's all-out war effort by attempts to "resurrect" pre-war interventionist issues.

Saying he was, before Pearl Harbor, a "sincere non-interventionist," Fish added "it is a matter of record that I voted for all army, navy and air force appropriation bills since 1938."

"I believe Mr. Willkie is doing a disservice to the Republican party and to the Democratic party as well and to the nation by trying to resurrect the pre-war controversial issues between non-interventionists and interventionists," Fish continued.

"I voted on all of these issues with 80 to 90 per cent of the Republican members of Congress. To revive these issues after the treacherous, sneak attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japs can only cause disunity among the American people and impede our all-out war effort."

Reports Fight

Charles Mosher, 38, a negro, employed on a farm in Hurley, is in the Kingston Hospital receiving treatment for a fractured jaw. According to the police report it was at 10:55 o'clock Sunday morning that the department received a call from 5 West Strand. Mosher told the police that he had had an argument with another negro named Willie. He said he did not know his last name, and that during the argument Willie landed a fist on Mosher's jaw.

Nelson Predicts Hard Days Ahead

Victory at All Costs Is Current U. S. Purpose

Chicago, June 15 (AP)—The American people, says Donald M. Nelson, want just one thing in the war—victory—and whatever it costs, they will pay without complaint.

Speaking at a patriotic rally before more than 100,000 persons in Soldier Field yesterday, the War Production Board chairman lauded the spirit of the American people for their determination to put winning the war "ahead of every other consideration." The rally was in honor of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his fighters and part of the United Nations celebration.

Nelson warned that "This war has not been won;" that "some very hard months are ahead of us," and "this is no time for easy optimism."

He declared that "We know that our fighting men are going to win this war, but let us not forget that we at home could lose it for them if we failed to play our parts properly."

A plan is under way to conduct victory garden harvest shows throughout the United States during the month of September.

Dear Pop:

Just like you said, Pop, this army life's makin' a man out of me. Of course, not the man you were when you were skrimishin' around with the old Rainbow Division. In this war we gotta be tough! I have to laugh when I think how you'd look bouncing around in a jeep for a couple of hours. Or shooting one of those dandy little anti-tank rifles off your shoulder!

We're putting together a rip snorter this trip. They're doing everythin' to make us just about the best bunch of fightin' galoots you ever saw.

And that goes for what they do for us off duty, too! You should see the new clubhouse they got for us just outside of camp. Got radios, dance floors, nice soft chairs and everything. And you can get something to eat that won't cost you a month's pay.

Now the army isn't running this. The USO's doing it. Most of the camps got clubs, too, because you and a lot of other folks dug down and gave the money to the USO last year.

But, Pop, you know what's happened since then. You've seen it right at home. Guys are just streaming into uniform. Why, last year there was less than 2 million of us. This year there'll be 4 million. The USO needs a lot of money to serve that many men.

That's why the USO is setting out to raise more of it—around 32,000,000 bucks I hear. Now, Pop, I know you upped with what you could last time. But it would sure be swell if you could dig down in the old sock again. Maybe you could get some of the other folks around the neighborhood steamed up.

It will mean an awful lot to the fellows down here and in every other camp. Sort of show 'em the home-folks are right there backing 'em up. And, Pop, I guess I don't have to tell an old soldier like you that's a mighty nice feeling for a fellow to have. See what you can do, huh, Pop?

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

SUGAR RATIONING PROMPTS QUESTIONS ON ETIQUETTE

Two new guest-manners questions brought about by sugar rationing are (1) What is the best way to carry one's own sugar when going to lunch or dine in the house of a friend whose sugar is of course limited? (2) How can one ask to be excused for the impoliteness of helping oneself to one's own supply and proffering none?

The simplest answer to both of these questions is to acquire a taste for saccharine, or similar substances, which are so intensely sweet, that the equivalent of many lumps of sugar can be carried in a tiny box or vial, and since none of these is likely to be rationed one may proffer one's own without stint. Real sugar can be carried in any box into which the essential one lump or two (or equivalent teaspoonsful) can fit. And don't forget! If you are going to stay for any length of time in someone's house you must take your ration card with you.

Don't try to Change Established Custom

Dear Mrs. Post: What in the world can one who is a newcomer do, in a town where the practise is to write every married woman's name—unless it accompanies the name of her husband—as Mrs. Mary Blank? I have noticed that they do it in club listings and in the Red Cross, and in fact whenever one asks the name of a married woman she answers Mrs. Mary—and not Mrs. John—

Answer: A newcomer cannot set herself up as a critic of any community's established custom. However she can give her own name as she pleases and insist that her own name is Mrs. John and not Mrs. Mary. If she finds that she is listed as Mrs. Mary she can ask them please to change it because it is not the name by which she is known. In doing this she must be careful to make it plain that she is not criticizing those who call themselves Mrs. Mary, but merely that she likes to keep the name she is used to. But whatever she says she must not forget there is nothing more endangering to a newcomer's popularity than any attempt to alter manners and customs as she finds them. It is just about the biggest DON'T that there is.

Emily Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Weddings," will answer all the questions about the ceremony and the reception that you have been asking yourself. #### Dog Warden in Draft

Kingston is without the services of its dog warden, for a few days at least, as Dog Warden Joseph J. Hoar was a member of the contingent that left for an army induction center in Albany this morning. The dog warden, if accepted for army service, will undoubtedly be granted a leave of absence by the city authorities, and another man will be appointed as temporary dog warden by the Common Council.

Celebrate 25th Anniversary

Highland, June 15—A surprise party gathered Wednesday evening to celebrate the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gruner at their home near Riverside. Mr. and Mrs. Gruner who were married in St. Angela Mirici Church in New York city have been residents of Highland for the past ten years. Mr. Gruner operates a farm and since coming here the family has been active in St. Augustine Church activities, and Mrs. Gruner takes part in P. T. A. They have six children who were all home but the oldest, Albert Gruner, who is teaching in Coeymans. Their son, Private Louis Gruner, Jr., who was home for the week-end from camp, arranged the party and had ordered the bride's bouquet using the same ribbons that had been on the bouquet 25 years before. There were 28 relatives, friends and neighbors present. Cards, refreshments and a mock wedding took place with Miss Luella Ose as the bride; Marian Gruner, the bridegroom; and Pvt. Louis Gruner, the chaplain; William Gruner acted as the bride's father giving her away. Among the members of the family present were Miss Bertha Gruner, Mrs. Pauline Gerkin, William R. Gruner, Mr. and Mrs. Max Gruner, Miss Pauline Gerkin and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gruner.

Mystic Court Ends Year With Anniversary and Reception

Mystic Court No. 62, O. of A., held its regular monthly meeting Monday, June 8, at Masonic Temple. A class of candidates were initiated.

The court celebrated its 25th anniversary and a reception was given for Honored Lady Mrs. Chauncey Freer on her appointment as grand representative to the state of Washington. A pretty degree of "Good Wishes" was presented by the officers. Honored Lady Mrs. James Wesley, royal matron, presented Honored Lady Mrs. Chauncey Freer with a gift from the court. Many gifts and flowers were presented to her from friends to whom she graciously responded.

Visitors from Poughkeepsie and Staten Island were present. At the close of the meeting a birthday cake was cut and a pot luck supper served. A social hour was enjoyed. Mystic Court has now closed for the summer and will reconvene in September.

Suppers-Food Sales

Strawberry Shortcake

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Shokan Reformed Church will hold a strawberry shortcake supper in the church hall, Tuesday evening, June 16. The supper is in charge of Mrs. William Tuceling and Mrs. Frank Barringer, will be served at 6 o'clock.

Flag Day Observed By D. A. R. Chapter

On Saturday members of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., entertained their guests at the Annual Flag Day Party. The regent, Mrs. William Macgregor Mills welcomed the guests on behalf of the Chapter and told the story of the first "Star-Spangled Banner".

In 1814, shortly after Francis Scott Key wrote the "Star-Spangled Banner" a young lady in Baltimore made a flag for the garrison at Fort Mifflin, where it remained under fire for the length of the war. After the war it was given to Major Armstrong, who was in command. It remained in his family for a century. In 1912 it was given to the National Museum in Washington, where in a few years it was found to be falling to pieces. Then Mrs. Amelia Fowler of Boston gathered a group of experts restoring the flag. It now hangs in a glass case in the Smithsonian Institute where it is one of this country's most cherished possessions.

Mrs. Mills then introduced Mrs. Adam Porter, counselor for the Junior American Citizens Club of the Seventh Grade of School No. 8.

Mrs. Porter told a bit of the work of the club and introduced the program, which was made up from the membership of the club.

The "Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag" was led by Robert Adams. The first number was a toe dance by Miss Verabelle Crisman, accompanied by Miss Ottilia Riccoboni. This was followed by a vocal solo, "Mighty Lak a Rose", sung by Miss Kaye Whelan accompanied by Mrs. Mills. Miss Shirley Piester recited a poem, "The Service Flag". Miss Dorothy Boyle, who won the competition for grade schools in the county, read her prize essay, "Why the Blue Defense Stamps". Miss Kaye Whelan then introduced the scenes from the playlet, "The Man Without a Country" presented by the following cast:

Phillip Nolan ..... Robert Adams
Morgan ..... William Scully
Judge ..... Donald Smith
Danford ..... George Geisler
Soldiers ..... George Geisler, Thomas Welch
Virginia ..... Miss Verabelle Crisman
Story Teller ..... The Misses Verabelle Crisman, Kaye Whelan, Dorothy Boyle, Shirley Piester.

The children were coached in the playlet and recitations by the teacher of the Seventh Grade, Miss Lenore Fitzgerald, who also assists Mrs. Porter in directing the activities of the club. The members of Wiltwyck Chapter and the people of the city may be proud of the work done in preparation for citizenship by these school children.

Following the program, refreshments were served by the members of the Entertainment Committee, Mrs. Arthur Quimby, chairman.

Personal Notes

Friday evening, Miss Marie Flynn of 290 Broadway, entertained at a semi-formal dinner party in honor of several of her classmates at the Academy of St. Ursula, and their friends. ## 'Dark Horses' in Governor's Race

Mead for Democratic, Wadsworth for G.O.P.

Albany, N. Y., June 15 (AP)—"Dark horse" speculation simmered today in the New York gubernatorial cauldron, which up to now has been bubbling steadily for Democrat John J. Bennett, Jr., and Republican Thomas E. Dewey. Among prominently mentioned "dark horses" were these: For the Democrats U. S. Senator James M. Mead; for the Republicans Rep. James W. Wadsworth, Jr.

Political observers, despite the overwhelming head start built up in the Bennett and Dewey camps respectively held out a slim chance for Mead, Wadsworth, or others, to snatch nominations at convention time.

Chance of a Democrat to defeat Bennett appears to lie largely with President Roosevelt, who said he is not yet definitely committed to any candidate, despite unofficial claims he will back the attorney general. Bennett has announced himself a candidate and has already received a majority of convention pledges.

There is some feeling in Albany that Roosevelt may decide on Mead, despite the senator's avowal he is not a candidate. Mead has already received support of the Erie County Democratic Committee, which yesterday announced it would continue to oppose Bennett even if Mead does not become a candidate.

Announcing his committee would back Mayor Joseph J. Kelly of Buffalo if Mead declines, Chairman George B. Boyle stated "We do not believe in hopping on somebody else's bandwagon and we will go to the convention with a candidate of our own."

Dewey, who although he has not announced himself a candidate for the nomination has received a steadily mounting wave of convention-vote pledges, has received no outright opposition as yet.

But addressing a meeting of Republican rural chairmen in Watertown Saturday night, Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 presidential candidate whose force in the party is undeniably strong, voiced high praise of Wadsworth. While making no reference to the gubernatorial nomination, Willkie declared:

"I consider James W. Wadsworth the outstanding legislator in America in the last 25 years. One of the amazing things is that the Republican party does not take Jim's record of the last two and one-half years and exploit it." Some political observers have previously maintained that Willkie is cool toward Dewey as a gubernatorial candidate.

Others who have mentioned as possible Democratic candidates are Lieutenant Governor Charles Poletti, who has received Governor Lehman's outspoken backing; Oscar W. Ewing, former vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Owen D. Young, retired industrialist; and Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson.

Walther League Holds Convention on Sunday

The 31st Meeting Was Held at Immanuel Lutheran Church in This City

Holding its 31st annual convention the Albany District Walther League met at the Immanuel Lutheran Church Saturday and Sunday in its first convention since the country has been engaged in war. The absence of the young men now in military service was chiefly noticed during the convention sessions and many resolutions were adopted providing for the members at home to keep in contact with those in the armed forces.

The first business session opened Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with a short devotional period led by the Rev. Harold Johnson. Arnold G. Fisch, district president, then called the meeting to order and a welcome was brought to the visiting societies from the president of Kingston League, Elmer Kirschner. Reply was made by Miss Marjorie Zech of Albany, who also reported in the absence of her brother serving in the army for the Wheatridge Foundation Seal Fund.

The president then appointed the following committees: Service agent, Miss Gertrude Gronemeyer; collectors for convention sessions, Preston DeWitt, Alfred Marheld Tuesday afternoon, June 16, in the auditorium of the State Teachers College. The class has prepared an interesting program of well balanced and diverse numbers it has made a good strong scholastic record and these students will enter high school thoroughly ready. All are invited to attend the graduation in the afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

in the world, not only through our church, but also in our lives."

Professor Theiss also brought messages from the headquarters of International Walther League to the Saturday and Sunday afternoon sessions. This was the first meeting with the Albany District that he had made since becoming the executive secretary of the organization.

He urged the members to realize the strength that would come in association with each other in the work and with God. He also spoke of the loss of many of the young men who are now serving in the armed forces. It has already been difficult to carry on some of the usual business in several of the districts where change was required in leadership because of the war. However, he stressed that the members who are left must make a special effort to continue the programs and work with the young people of the congregations who have not as yet become associated in Walther League.

Of importance in aiding with the difficult tasks ahead is the adoption of the Christian knowledge and Bible work prepared by the society, he said. He also noted that success in church work was not measured by the outward display of membership or the amount of work enumerated in statistics but rather in the individual strength in faith and the place of religion in the life and work of the people.

Professor Theiss explained some of the plans of the executive board in preparing programs for the present and with thought for the future. The Denver national convention has been cancelled because of the transportation situation so it will be necessary for smaller groups to gather, perhaps in districts, to work out plans and solve difficulties.

Answering the criticism that the organization stressed the religious side of the activities too much, Professor Theiss said that the statistics had proven the most prosperous days have been those when the Bible knowledge programs were being used more extensively. Material for leadership training will be one of the important items for this year when so many new leaders will be taking charge of the societies.

During the sessions the resolutions committee presented their plans. In addition to the regular business moves, there were several resolutions regarding the members in the forces of the United States. It was resolved to think of the men, keep in contact with them, support the Army and Navy fund, and pray for their safe return, God willing, and to keep them in "God's kingdom of grace."

Word had been received just Saturday morning that one of the former leaders of the Albany District had been lost in the sinking of the U. S. S. Lexington. A telegram from Private William A. Thiel of the Kingston organization, a former treasurer of the district, who is now serving in the United States Signal Corps.

Officers for the coming year were re-elected and installed at the vespers service which closed the convention sessions. There were only three chosen by election the secretary being appointed later in the year. Those selected were Arnold Fisch, of Albany, president; George Hines of Albany, vice-president; and Kenneth Monthie of Kinderhook, treasurer.

There were about 135 delegates registered at the convention and the sessions were also attended by interested non-members. Next year the meeting will be held at St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, Albany.

Worship Service Sunday morning was the worship service at which time Professor Otto H. Theiss, International Walther League's official representative, delivered the sermon on the convention theme: "Peace in Christ." A resume of the sermon follows:

"One of the great tragedies of our civilization is the failure of the effort to achieve peace in human relations. This failure is once again written in the blood and tears of our generation. It has become pitifully apparent that the basis upon which our civilization is built has been fundamentally wrong and unable to guarantee peace."

"We know now, as we should have known long ago, that materialism must lead inevitably to war. When things become man's highest value, things will be the object of his search, the ultimate desire of his heart, and eventually the cause of strife and war. We need, therefore, today to remember again the power which lies in the peace of Christ. This is the dynamic force which must again take possession of human hearts and lives."

The peace of Christ is not a research, but a power to elevate human things and living and to solve the tragic problems of strife and wrong in our relations with our fellowmen. We must do more than win a military victory; we must also make certain that the proclamation of Christ's peace will go

Flood Control Job in Southern Tier Soon May Finish

By GEORGE CULLEN

Washington, June 15 (AP)—Army engineers expect to complete this year virtually all flood control projects undertaken in New York's southern tier after the disastrous floods of 1935-36 and wherever practical are redesigning the structures to provide for the use of a minimum of critical war materials and manpower.

"The department is completing only those projects which have a direct value in the war effort or which were initiated prior to the present war and contain a substantial federal investment which should be safeguarded," Major General Eugene Reybold, chief of engineers, told Senator Mead (D-N. Y.).

"You may be assured that in the completion of these projects, the department is taking every practicable step to redesign those structures which require the use of critical materials to eliminate the critical materials required or to reduce the amount used to a minimum consistent with safety from an engineering standpoint."

The General added the war department was "fully aware of the necessity for conserving to the maximum extent the critical materials, equipment and manpower needed for the war effort" and was carrying on its authorized flood control and rivers and harbors programs "in such a way as not to interfere with those portions of that effort which have a greater value in winning the war."

He said it was apparent from a study of the status of flood control projects in the New York area "that practically all of the department's flood control activities will be finished by the middle of December of this year, with the exception of section two of the Elmira project and section five of the Binghamton project."

Recs Defeat Jersey, 6-2; Black Yanks Wednesday

Don Hempe Is Impressive in First Start for Locals; Whiffs Eight, Slams Out Triple

The Kingston Recreations came to life with a big four-run rally in the fifth inning of last night's game at the municipal stadium against the Jersey City Blue Sox and proceeded to win the contest by the score of 6 to 2 in back of the fine spot hurling of young Don Hempe, southpaw from Poughkeepsie.

It was Kingston's third straight victory and its fifth in six games. This impressive record will be on test Wednesday night when the famous Black Yankees of New York play here. The Brooklyn Royal Giants are scheduled for an outright contest here next Sunday night.

Hempe, working with all the mastery of a veteran in his first big time debut last night, found himself in plenty of hot water when he managed to squeeze out an inside fly ball to center field. Jersey raked him for his only two runs of the game in the first innings with the aid of a cheap hit.

George "Lefty" Purcell started for the Sox and finished the game. Both hitters were hit for 10 batters. Three Blue Sox errors, however, failed to help the hurling of Purcell. Kingston's four runs in the fifth inning ruined Purcell who, up to that time, had enjoyed a rather easy assignment.

Break Helps Recs

The Recreations big rally might not have been realized at all except for a tough break. In the fifth Frank San Filippo, who picked up two hits last night, singled to right. Purcell tried to pick him off first and in the minds of most fans and writers, did the trick but Bill Murphy called the runner safe. Kowalek walked. Hempe, who had slapped out a lousy triple in the third, forced Kowalek at first. San Filippo going to third. Van Herper walked to fill the sacks.

Downer's hard smash to the box, deflected off Purcell's bare hand to second where Rooney threw too late to first. San Filippo scored. Rooney's toss was wild, going to the grandstand and Hempe came home. Maines, who had whiffed twice, bounced out to third. Shine Kane was walked intentionally. Ralph Coleman blasted a single through the hole, scoring Van Herper and Downer. Whitesell ended the uprising by going out to the box.

Hempe, judging from his exhibition last night, will be in for more work with the Recs. He fanned eight and showed acceptable control. He was in trouble during the first part of the game, but hurled air-tight ball in the final stanzas. Six of the 10 hits off his delivery were made in the first three frames.

Press Box Jottings

Hempe also displayed his batting power when he cracked a long liner into deep left field in the third for a triple. Downer's first of three hits scored the young moundsman. . . Tommy Maines played third last night in place of Girvan. Maines' hitting is still off, which may mean that he'll be on the bench Wednesday night. . . Van Herper was the victim of Purcell's strikeouts. He fanned four times, walked the other time up. . . One of the greatest collections of septa stars will be at the stadium Wednesday night when the Black Yankees come in. The Yanks were scheduled here for two games last year but both were lost due to bad weather. One of the biggest turnouts of recent years is expected for this struggle. . . Bob Miller, former Bushwick hurler, will do the hurling for the Recs.

Ace Golfers Move To Chicago; Meet In Hale America

Little and Mangrum Win Inverness Four-Ball Matches; Byrd and Picard Follow

Toledo, O., June 15 (P)—Sixteen top-flight golf professionals headed for Chicago and the week-end's Hale America event today after splitting a $7,650 purse in the eighth annual Inverness four-ball matches in which Lawson Little and Lloyd Mangrum grabbed first prize of $2,358.33.

Mangrum and Little distanced the field with a plus 14 score in the 126 holes of best-ball match play, winding up far ahead of the plus 8 with which Henry Picard and Sam Byrd capped second place and $1,383.33.

Byrd and Picard skyrocketed into the runner-up spot with a nine-up victory over Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron in the final round—the most one-sided match in the tournament's history.

Here's how the other teams finished, with their winnings, in the round-robin chase:
Herman Keiser and Chandler Harper, plus 6, $950; Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson, plus 5, $908.33; Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, plus 5, $700; E. J. Harrison and Denny Shute, minus 5, $550; Horton Smith and Chick Harbert, minus 14, $450; Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron, minus 19, $350.

The Thomson-Nelson and Little-Mangrum combinations divided $250 for scoring the most birdies on the 126 holes—42 each—while the same combinations, along with Byrd-Picard, split another $250 for having the best-ball rounds of 62—nine under par.

Hogan and Demaret, the defending kings, finished in a fourth-place tie, but Hogan kept the lead among the year's money winners with $10,298.

American Legion District Meeting Held at Cocksackie

The third district of the American Legion, Department of New York, held its annual convention at Cocksackie, with mayor of the village, John Hurliehy, delivering the welcome address in behalf of the community. District Commander William Stevens was the presiding officer.

The assembled delegates heard Col. Frederick Knabshue, U. S. Army retired, who delivered the address of the day. The colonel, who spent many years in the Philippine Islands, depicted a graphic picture of his experience there since 1909. He spoke of the natives love for our country and American traditions in general.

He lauded General MacArthur's campaign as a masterpiece of military strategy and expressed his hopes for an ultimate victory. During the business session of the district conference, reports of county activity were read. "Pop" Wagner reported a membership of 4,987 Legionnaires within the third district, with an assured increase by the time the New York State Department convenes in August.

The "40 and 8", service organization within the Legion, was lauded for its effort in securing the needed membership. Lewis H. Van De Mark of New Paltz and Commander Chester Bradford re-

Maroon Golfers Win Tournament On Walden Course

Track Squad Is Second in Section 9 Event at Middletown; Newburgh First

Athletes of Kingston High School were engaged in two competitions over the week-end. The Maroon golf squad won the team championship in the annual Hudson Valley Scholastic tournament Saturday at the Osiris Country Club in Newburgh.

In Middletown the Maroon track squad placed second in the Section Nine track tournament. Newburgh won the event with a total of 27 points. Kingston came in second with 20. Port Jervis in third with 17 and Middletown in fourth with 12½.

The Kingston golfers accumulated a grand total of 334 points to top the team title. Newburgh trailed in second. Dean Lucerni, young Poughkeepsie High golfer, won the individual championship with a string of 39-39-78. Bob Boice gave the victor plenty of uneasy moments as he came through with a 79. Spears and Lapori of Port Jervis tied for third with 80's.

The coaches' division play was won by Armond Burke, P. H. S. mentor who successfully defended his 1941 crown. Burke posted a 37 on the outgoing nine and coasted home with an even 40.

Track Squad Notes
Schools from Sullivan, Ulster and Orange counties were entered in the Section Nine track meet in Newburgh. The winners by seven markers. Kingston took two first places when Buddy Gildersleeve took the 100-yard dash and Harry Stahl featured in the hurdles. Gildersleeve also placed second in the broad jump. Ryan and Fitzgerald took third and fourth in the half-mile run. Remus was fourth in the javelin; Stahl second in shotput and second in the 440 relay.

Wyatt Behind Schedule
With a record of five won and one loss, Whit Wyatt, ace hurler of the Brooklyn Dodger staff, is a month behind his 1941 schedule. That was his score on May 9 last year. On the other hand, pitching in turn, and maintaining the pace he has shown to date, he can catch up with his 1941 record by the end of July. Last year he got credit for only one game won during July.

ceived citations for their work in securing membership. Outstanding among all reports, was the one submitted by John Ludlow, adjutant of the Ulster Legion Organization. In every phase of Legion activity the report showed marked progress. Adjutant Ludlow praised the chairmen of the committee concerned for their untiring effort, including Voltaire Locale No. 381, of "40 and 8" and for their special co-operation.

Those representing Ulster county at the convention were: Commander Stanley H. Dempsey of Kingston Post 150; Gus Snyder, post adjutant; Nelson Snyder; Jack Rabin, chairman on Americanism; and John Ludlow, county adjutant. Stanley Dempsey, Jr., of the Sons of Legion, was there as guest.

A special color guard composed of men in the service paid respects to Old Glory, with Alfred Comthier, colored, blind pianist, leading the assembly in the national anthem.

12,648 Fans Attend Big Army-Navy Show Sunday

Joe Louis Big Hit With Spectators; Bob Feller's Club Defeats Army by 4 to 0 Score

A crowd estimated at only 12,648 persons attended the All-Sports Carnival for the benefit of the Army Emergency Fund and the Navy Relief Society at the Polo Grounds in New York city Sunday, sat in on a program which lasted about six hours with never a dull moment in the activities.

Although less than 15,000 were in the stands of the home grounds of Mel Ott's New York Giants baseball team, officials said that nearly 30,000 tickets had been sold. Threatening weather helped to keep the fans at home.

Joe Barrow Louis, the guy who holds the heavyweight boxing crown, was the big hit of the show in his four rounds of boxing with George Nicholson, his sparring partner. One of the biggest disappointments was Cornelius Warmerdam, the great pole vaulter who couldn't do any better than 14 feet eight inches. Soggy turf, however, was his obstacle.

In tennis, Alice Marble and Don Budge, the redhead from California, lost to Karl Kozeluh and John Nogrady by 6-4. Corp. Porky Oliver won the golf contest by defeating Corp. Jim Turnesa and Vic Ghezzi. Oliver pitched within four feet, nine inches of the flag from 125 yards, and within three feet, nine inches from the 175 yards out.

Greg Rice gave the fans something to cheer about in the two-mile handicap. The lacrosse match resulted in a 5-1 win for the South All Stars over the Northern Aces. The baseball game between the Norfolk Naval Training team, with Bob Feller, former Cleveland hurler on the mound, was won by the sailors over Hugh Mulachy's Army team by the score of 4 to 0. Feller allowed only three singles and fanned seven. Mulachy, ex-Philadelphia Phil hurler, allowed six hits.

'Bloomer Boys' Win Close Game, 17-15 From Mayor's Club

In all probability there's a large demand for limiment today after Sunday afternoon's hectic ball game at Loughran Park featuring Dr. O'Connor's "Bloomer Boys" and Mayor Edelmuth's "Roaring Forties." After a lengthy tabulation, it was learned that the "Bloomer Boys" had captured the close struggle by the score of 17 to 15. It was the first game of a five-game series.

After Sunday's grueling battle, both clubs were unable to opine whether the players would be able to resume hostilities next week in the second contest. However, a good week's rest is expected to find the players in tip-top shape once again.

The "Roaring Forties" made a grand stab at winning the ball game as they had fairly good leads throughout the game. However, the plucky and determined "Bloomer Boys" came back strong and finally won the argument.

Manager Dr. O'Connor and Tommy Davitt worked on the mound for the winners. After the game Davitt said, "I've never seen anything like it. It was the biggest workout I ever had." These two moundsmen must have had something on the ball as the "Bloomer Boys" had to use three catchers, Flanagan, Garrahan and Forte.

Three well-known ball players divided the mound chores for the "Roaring Forties" combine. Dick Williams started off and gave way to Fred Stoudt. Stoudt in turn was relieved by the veteran Jack Rolas. Jack worked behind the plate at the start and then went to the hill. At last night's game at the stadium between the Recreations and Jersey City, Robins appeared in rather good shape but also remarked that it was a tough afternoon.

After the ball game the "Bloomer Boys" entertained the mayor's outfit at Dr. O'Connor's home. Further word is expected this week on the plans for the second game of the series.

Week-End Sports In Brief Review

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, inducted into coast guard with rank of lieutenant (senior grade) and placed in charge of physical training at coast guard's Manhattan Beach branch on Long Island.

Lincoln, Neb.—For the eighth straight year the University of Southern California track team captured the N.C.A.A. title, scoring 85½ points in the twilight Saturday at Ohio States in second place, garnered 44. No meet records were equalled or set.

Newmarket, Eng.—King George's Big Game finished a badly beaten sixth in historic Epsom Downs Derby, the race going to Lord Derby's Watling Street.

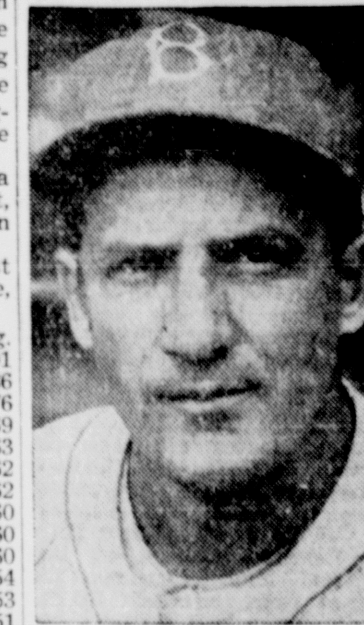

Toledo, O.—Lawson Little and Lloyd Mangrum won eighth annual $7,650 Inverness four-ball golf tournament with score of 14 plus, greatest ever compiled in meet. Henry Pickard and Sam Byrd were second with 8 plus.

Ruffing Ties Mound Mark Of McGinnity by Winning 251st Game of His Career

Out of Slump

JOE MCGINNITY

There is a rosy tint to the landscape these days for Joe McGinnity and the Carteret Cloutier doesn't have to put on pink glasses to perceive it. During the past winter a certain scribe said McGinnity was through as a big leaguer and would soon be in Montreal. When the Dodgers came north from spring training, the New Jersey ace was missing something. But now look at him! With the season a third over, he is smacking the ball at a .329 clip and has hit in 16 straight games. And this was after a very slow start. Up to May 1 he was batting a mere .250. However, since that time he has hit at a .348 speed. He is slashing the ball as in his early days with the Cardinals, and may be headed for one of the best years of his career.

Cincinnati Plans Novel Twin-Bill For Army, Navy

Combined Team of Reds and Cubs Play Service Stars June 30; Regular Loop Game Also

Cincinnati, June 15 (Special to Freeman)—Army-Navy Relief Night at Crosley Field in Cincinnati Tuesday, June 30, will be the occasion for one of the greatest attractions ever scheduled on a baseball field. A twilight-night doubleheader will be played at that time, one of the games between a combined team composed of the Reds and Chicago Cubs, and the Great Lakes Naval team, and the other a regularly scheduled National League contest between the Reds and Cubs.

The first game of the twin bill, the first of its kind ever attempted in the major leagues, will start at 6:30 o'clock. Upon its completion, there will be a monstrous military exhibition by hundreds of soldiers from Fort Knox, Ky., and then will come the second game of the twin bill, under the lights.

Every cent of the receipts, after the deduction of federal tax, which must be paid in all cases, will be put into the Army-Navy Relief fund. In addition, all concession profits will be donated. The Cincinnati Baseball Club will assume the cost of operating the event, and will pay for all park help, such as ticket sellers, takers, ushers, policemen, etc.

Before they could go ahead with the plans for the special doubleheader, Powell Crosley, Jr., president of the club, and Warren Giles, general manager, had to receive permission from each club in the National League. The attraction also received the endorsement of President Ford Frick of the National League and Commissioner of Baseball Kenesaw M. Landis.

The combination team of the Reds and Cubs, which will meet the Great Lakes Club, will be selected by the fans. Any fan desiring to help in the selection of the players should write his choices to the Army-Navy Relief Game Committee, care of the Cincinnati Baseball Club, 307 Vine street, Cincinnati.

Players should be selected for all positions except pitcher, and a batting order should be indicated. The managers necessarily must reserve the right to decide what pitchers can be
